J. M. P. Sends a Book
The Iron Duke
A Great Little Man
What Is Fame? Ask Him

By Arthur Brisbane

CAPT. J. M. P. sent along a new life of Wellington by Philip Guedella, published by Harper and Brothers, and this misguided person, awake at 2 in the morning, thought "glancing through a few pages of that dull biography will bring sleep quickly."

The glancing through, and the 481 pages were finished six and a half hours later, at 8:30 yesterday morning. No sleeping powder more dangerous than good biography.

If you are able to buy books freely, and like biography, get the new Wellington. It costs four dollars, and is not for those that have not already read at least one hundred of greater men biographies.

A thousand characters in history are more important than Wellington, as individuals, although his good fortune, finding Napoleon just when the latter could be pushed over, will make him memorable as long as this era of war shall seem important.

It is advantageous not to underestimate your adversary, and not to fear him. Wellington did not underestimate Napoleon, for he said that Bonaparte's presence on the battlefield was worth forty thousand men.

He might have said four hundred thousand.

Wellington was able to study Napoleon at long range, in Spain, where Napoleon did not go in person, and studying orders sent to the French marshals Wellington was encouraged by the discovery that Napoleon could make mistakes.

When he met Napoleon, or rather the shadow of Napoleon, at Waterloo, Wellington had no fear of the great name. Every trainer of a prize fighter can tell you what that means. This writer long ago saw John L. Sullivan in the old New York Madison Square Garden walk slowly up to a well-trained, powerful athlete taller, stronger than himself.

Looking into Sullivan's savage eyes, the other man wavered and fell down. That was the end of the fight. Not a blow struck, and the frightened one might have won the battle.

The fact that he never knew fear, doing, alone, on horseback in his dull gray coat, the most dangerous scouting, proves Wellington's greatness, or, at least, perfect control of his nerves. His littleness was proved, in many ways, for instance, by his comical statement that Napoleon was not a gentleman. "Bonaparte's mind was, in its details, low and ungentlemanlike." That was a small puddle, criticizing the Pacific. But it was a brave and interesting little puddle.

The interesting littleness was shown in his distrust of the people, his hatred of the word liberty or anything approaching liberalism, his fawning on sovereigns, that perhaps owed their thrones to him, his relations with the deeply religious little Miss Jenkins, who sent him a Bible, read out loud to him from it, bossed him and planned to marry him.

His almost childish distress, when it was proposed to remove an equestrian statue that had been erected in his honor, was pathetic. But when the mob that had stoned his windows in London, threatened his life, in his old age, as he slowly rode his horse through the streets, it was the real Wellington that it saw, grimly contemptuous, never hastening his pace for the rabble, to which he applied the French saying:

Pour la canaille,
Faut la mitraille.

Meaning roughly "For the rabble, bullets."

The man who nourished "vaulting ambition" in his youth and sees life slipping away, without realization of his dreams, will not read without childish emotion the list of titles that Wellington carries to the grave. They are ingeniously and dramatically inserted at intervals in Guedella's description of Wellington's funeral, and show the advantage that monarchy possesses, in its power to reward services, by feeding vanity.

The Iron Duke, moving slowly to his grave, in a preposterously ugly, unsuitable and very British funeral car, bore more than 50 titles. These are a few:

Duke of Wellington, Prince of Waterloo in the Netherlands, Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo in Spain, Duke of Brunoy in France, Grandee of the First Class in Spain, Commander-in-

LATE NEWS FLASHES

FOWLE, BOSTON BANKER, TO WED IN RENO

Elliott R. Fowle, 51, Boston investment banker residing at 1445 Commonwealth ave., West Newton, filed intentions at Reno, Nev., today to wed Gwendolyn H. Ellis of Reno, according to dispatches from that city. Fowle's first wife died eight months ago.

VERMONT MAN JAILED IN TORTURE CASE

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 14—William H. McNamara, charged with the "torture" of Irene Pasno, 7, of West Swansea, step-sister of McNamara's wife, was jailed here today in default of $2000 bonds. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of "cruel and inhuman treatment by torturing with beatings and burns of a cigarette butt.'

FORMER LYNN MAN DYING IN COAST CRASH

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP)—William H. Chase, formerly of Ocean st., Lynn, Mass., was probably fatally injured when his automobile left a highway and struck an embankment. His skull was fractured and he also suffered internal injuries.

BRUENING REGIME SAFE TILL FEBRUARY

Berlin, Dec. 14 (INS)—The Socialists in the Reichstag decided tonight to continue support of Chancellor Bruening, despite the recent "dictator" decrees. This assures Bruening's continuance in office until February.

WHEELER DEMANDS WHEAT FOR JOBLESS

Washington, Dec. 14 (INS)—A bill authorizing the Federal Farm Board to donate fifty million of its surplus wheat to the American Red Cross was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana. It would be used for relief of the unemployed.

SHERWOOD PROPERTY SEIZURE SOUGHT

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—A motion to punish Russell T. Sherwood, fugitive from the Hofstadter committee investigation, was filed today in Supreme Court. If the motion is granted, Sherwood's property up to $100,000 value may be seized.

"HUNGER" SPEAKER UNDER ARREST

Providence, Dec. 14 (AP)—Immigration Inspector William Clark has a warrant for the arrest for deportation proceedings of Samuel Paul on the ground that he is a member of the Communist party. Paul was held by Pawtucket police following a meeting of returned "hunger marchers."

DEATH TOLL OF SIX IN LOUISIANA TORNADO

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 14 (AP)—Six people perished, a score or more were injured, many were made homeless and untold damage was done to property by tornadic storms that swept southwestern Louisiana and northern Louisiana during the week-end.

SLAP ON WRIST BY UNDERHILL

Washington, Dec. 14 (INS)—Rep. Sweeney (D) of Cleveland, one of the new members of the house, was lectured today by Rep. Underhill (R) of Massachusetts, for his "caustic observations" last week on "drinking dry congressmen."

Taking exception to Sweeney's declaration that there were dry members who "retire into the cloakroom" to drink and then come in on the floor to vote dry, Underhill said this was a reflection on the entire membership.

"The member from Ohio has been here just five legislative days and during that time the prohibition question has not been voted on," Underhill said. "It ill becomes any member to make such a statement without proof.

Hindenburg Letters Seized by Raiders

Heidelberg, Germany, Dec. 14 (AP)—A fashionable tea party given at Rothenberg Castle by F. Von Reichenau, former secretary of the Germany embassy in Washington, was raided by police yesterday in what was said to be a vain search for a certain political document.

Forty guests, men and women, were searched. Private letters written to Reichenau by President Von Hindenberg and Adolf Hitler were seized.

Portland, Me., Dec. 14 (AP)—A love triangle was revealed in court in a $25,000 alienation-of-affections suit brought by George B. Felch, 79, against Abraham H. Milliken, 84, both of Portlnad.

Mrs. Felch, whose affections her husband charges were alienated by Milliken, is 69.

Felch testified that he was married in June, 1930, and that from their wedding day to the time of their separation a year later Milliken's attentions to Mrs. Felch resulted in his being deprived of her care, devotion and companionship.

Churchill Injuries Become Dangerous

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Winston Churchill, British statesman, knocked down by a taxicab last night, underwent lengthy examination today and doctors acknowledged there was danger of pleural hemorrhage.

X-ray photographs were taken. Physicians announced that, at any rate, the former British chancellor of the exchequer would be unable to do any active work for several weeks. Several speaking engagements were cancelled.

Indian Women Slay English Magistrate

New Delhi, India, Dec. 14 (AP)—Two Bengali women shot and killed Charles Geoffrey Buckland Stevens, district magistrate of Tippera, Bengal, today. Both women were arrested.

This marked the first time women have come actively into notice as slayers in Indian terrorist clashes.

Gunmen Steal $1300 in Roxbury

BIND AND GAG PAWN SHOP OWNER

Trio Act Within Block of Police Station; Force Victim to Open Safe

Three bandits stole $300 and jewelry valued at $1000 today in a daylight holdup in the pawn shop of Benjamin Beeman, 1313 Tremont st., Roxbury, a block from the police station.

The bandits bound and gagged Beeman and threw him down the cellar stairs. When they failed to open the safe they untied him and forced him to do it.

Just after he had complied, a customer, Bernard Sirr of Lamont st., Roxbury, entered the shop and the pawnbroker, hoping to save Sirr from a fright, whispered to the bandits:

"Tell him it's a Jewish holiday and we're closed."

Instead of complying, the robber trio flashed their guns on Sirr and then forced both men into the cellar. One robber hurled an axe at the pawnbroker, apparently to frighten him.

Although each bandit had a gun, they stole one Beeman kept in the shop and also took private papers he valued highly.

Two first entered the store under pretext of pawning a watch. Beeman offered $4 and they left to "go elsewhere." They were back with the third companion in a minute having assured themselves they could proceed with safely.

MYSTERY IN NOVA SCOTIA

New Germany, N. S., Dec. 14—Mystery by wholesale today confronted Provincial police who came to this back country district to solve the death of a crippled youth.

The officers had on their hands what they fear are two murders plus a shooting that may result in a third death.

On Dec. 2 the body of Myles Simpson, a crippled boy, was found in the West river. A post mortem indicated he was dead before thrown in the river.

Yesterday, William Simpson, his brother, went into the woods with a gun. A short time later he returned with a wound in his head he said was accidental, but police were doubtful. He is not expected to live.

Today the lifeless body of Menuel Smith, middle-aged resident of Nineveh, 11 miles from here, was found half a mile from his home. He had been shot.

M'KNIGHT IS BACK; GETS HIS BONDS

Medford Trust Head Handed New Summons to Appear in Court on Bank Charges

Edwin T. McKnight, indicted bank president, returned from Florida today, spent the afternoon arranging bail—while Middlesex court waited—and was served a Suffolk county grand jury summons to appear Monday.

The Middlesex delay was granted by Dist.-Atty. Warren L. Bishop after the prosecutor requested Judge John M. Gibbs to stay after the regular session of court.

The Suffolk County summons was issued in connection with the closing of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co., of which McKnight is a stockholder.

Meanwhile, Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy of Suffolk County hurried to Cambridge court to see the "prisoner," but there was no prisoner.

ARRANGES FOR BOND

While the officials conferred, McKnight was at his office, 148 State st., behind closed doors and in conference with two professional bondsmen and John E. Eaton, his partner.

Emerging after several hours, McKnight announced he had secured a bond.

"There is no doubt McKnight will have some difficulty in raising bail and may not be able to appear until after 4 p. m., Dist. Atty. Bishop said in explanation of the delay.

Alighting from a train at 12:45 in South Station, the accused banker ended three weeks of conjecture that arose from his departure while a state detective sought to serve a grand jury summons.

He was accompanied by a man and was met by a woman relative.

POSES FOR CAMERAS

Efforts of friends to shield the banker from photographers brought a chiding from McKnight, and he stepped to the fore while flashlights popped.

"What have you got to say? How are you feeling?" were the first of a barrage of questions hurled at McKnight.

"I feel only fair," he answered.

"I have nothing to say right now, boys. I may have something to say a little later," he addressed a group of reporters.

Then he was whisked away to make arrangements for a bond so he might be immediately released following his court plea. He is the thirteenth and final defendant in the Medford Trust Co. probe.

A few hours before, Frank W. Lovering, son of former Mayor Lewis H. Lovering of Medford, was

Heiress' Truckman Is Freed of Charge

Montclair, N. J., Dec. 14 (INS)—Bevis T. Pickerell, truck driver, and his 15-year-old heiress bride today were given leave to live happily ever after.

A motion was granted by Recorder Strazza to dismiss the complaint against Pickerell by his wealthy father-in-law, John C. Barclay. Pickerell and Beatrice Barclay eloped last week.

Turkish Woman Hanged in Public

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 14 (AP)—Fatima Haim, the first woman ever executed in public in Turkey, was hanged in the village of Tuzpazar, near Sparta.

She killed another woman with an axe and took $100 from the woman's husband, who had incited the murder so he could marry again.

BACK TO FACE CHARGES

LYNN MAN FREE OF 'COLL GANG'

Catskill, N. Y., Dec. 14 (AP)—John Burnett of Lynn, Mass., has just about proved to county officials that he is not a member of the Vincent Coll gang of New York city, arrested by State troopers and New York detectives in raids near here last summer.

Authorities indicated today an indictment against Burnett, charging violation of the Sullivan anti-pistol law, probably would be dismissed.

Burnett, who claims to be a special policeman in Lynn and a gardener by occupation, explained he was doing some gardening work on property adjacent to the cottage in which members of the Coll gang were rounded up, that he was invited to the cottage and happened to be there when the raid was made.

Boston in Twilight Gloom in Daytime

Twilight gloom in Boston today made necessary the lighting of offices in the downtown section long before noon.

Beneath the Elevated structures in Atlantic ave. and along Washington st., the gloom was almost that of night, and automobiles had their full headlights on in most of Greater Boston streets.

Cambridge police headquarters was engulfed in complete darkness for a time today when a defective fuse caused all the lights to blow out.

Old style lamps and candles were substituted and used by policemen for half-an-hour until workmen found the seat of the trouble.

Arthur Rose, Sprint Cyclist, Is Dead

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Arthur Rose, 19-year-old champion sprint cyclist, died today of lobar pneumonia.

Rose was the national amateur bicycling sprint champion for 1931, and held the world's amateur record for the half mile. He made this record in 53 2-5 seconds.

His trainer, Joseph McManus said he was a possible candidate for the Olympic games next year.

GAS TAX YIELDS 42 P. C. MORE

Gasoline tax receipts for the fiscal year ending December 1, 1931, exceeded by nearly 42 per cent the tax accruing to the State in the fiscal year ending December 1, 1930, according to an estimate made today by Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long.

For 1931 the tax receipts will be $14,979,081, as against $10,574,806 for the fiscal year of 1930—an increase of $4,404,275.

In November, 1931, the tax receipts were $1,306,520, against $868,821, the same month last year.

In 1930 there was a two-cent tax though, while for the last six months of the 1931 fiscal year the tax advanced to three cents a gallon.

Federal Agent Gone With $13,000 Funds

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14—Anthony Gillotti, a federal agent of Utica, disappeared three weeks ago with $13,000 of government money given to him to purchase narcotics.

Gillotti turned over to his superiors a quantity of supposed cocaine, which, he said, cost him $10,000. He was allowed to keep the remaining $3000 for additional "buys."

Analysis revealed the "cocaine" was a mixture of soda and sugar.

HIJACKERS ROB POLICE OF SEIZED LIQUOR

Grab 250 Cases in Nantasket While the Cops Are Taking Away Balance of Lot

Hijackers stole 250 cases of liquor from under the noses of police today after a "tip" had led to the finding of a 600-case cache, valued at $25,000, in the Nantasket summer home of Dr. John Bapst Blake of Harvard Medical School.

While the police worked on one side of the house, removing 350 cases, the hijackers worked on the other, passing 250 cases out of the windows to comrades.

Not only that, but after the Hull police had departed with their load, the hijackers continued to find cause to remain and passed out more cases.

ALL BUT THE RUNNERS

The hijacking was like a scene from a stage comedy, with the authorities and hijackers working in perfect amity, only in this case the police had no knowledge of the presence of the 'jackers.

The police got liquor, the hijackers got liquor, a portion of the citizenry got liquor and only the rum-runners, who had landed the load under cover of the morning fog and cached it at great labor, were the losers.

Fifteen cars carried members of the hijacking gang to the scene. The police apparently believed all the liquor was stored in one room, but it wasn't.

HOLIDAY SUPPLY

The liquor was part of the flow of Boston's holiday rum which authorities are seeking to dam. It had been landed on the Hull shore and cached shortly before arrival of police raiders.

Two painters, working on a nearby house, tipped off police in the belief that burglars were entering Dr. Blake's house. They were later threatened, it was learned.

The drive to interrupt the holiday liquor flow was launched on Friday by the coast guard and customs service with seizure of $20,000 worth of rum on a speedboat outside Dorchester bay and the capture of another runner with 100 cases aboard off Gloucester.

FLEE IN TRUCKS.

Ten rum runners escaped in trucks today as Public Safety Commissioner Henry Stevens of Hull led a raiding party to the scene upon receiving a tip that a boat had made a successful landing under cover of fog.

The police found the liquor stacked from floor to ceiling of Dr. Blake's home, which is in the exclusive Green Hill section on Summit ave., adjoining the summer home of Judge Michael J. Murray of Boston Municipal Court.

The use of Dr. Blake's home by the rum gang had a more incongruous aspect by reason of his public lectures in which he stated that whiskey never did any sick person any good.

Included in the seizure was rye and bourbon whiskey, under Four Aces, Lincoln Inn and Coon Hollow labels, and a quantity of champagne which was destined to grace Christmas and New Year's festive boards.

Prison for Two

Providence, R. I., Dec. 14 (AP)—Two youths who took a girl into a machine in front of the Bernon Worsted Co. and attempted to assault her, today were sentenced to two years in prison each. They were Robert McLaughlin, 25, and George L. Paquin, 21.

CONGRESS GETS $2,000,000,000 PUBLIC WORKS PLAN

WAGNER MOVES FOR ACTION ON EMPLOYMENT

Long-Term Issue of Bonds to Defray Cost of Huge Proposal

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Dec. 14 (INS)—A resolution initiating a $2,000,000,000 public works program, using the machinery of the federal employment stabilization board created by the last congress to get the project under way, was introduced today by Sen. Wagner (D) of New York.

The cost of the work would be defrayed by a long term bond issue. The employment stabilization board was enacted by Congress last session as one of Wagner's unemployment relief bills.

Its purpose is to create by advance planning a reserve pool of public construction that could be authorized by Congress in times of economic depression, such as the present.

GRIEVOUS EXTRAVAGANCE

It further empowers the President to declare by proclamation that an emergency exists and to ask for funds to get the board's construction plans under way.

The President having failed to call on Congress for such measures in his various messages last week, Wagner took the initiative with his resolution. He said:

"There is no more grievous extravagance than the United States is guilty of today than that of permitting valuable time and labor of its unemployed to go irretrievably to waste. That policy involves far more than a dollar and cents loss.

"It is daily sapping morale and wrecking character. It is undermining the health of the coming generation. The President having failed to act, the time has come for Congress to do so."

WOULD FORCE ACTION

Wagner's resolution directs the President and secretary of the treasury to transmit to Congress "at the earliest possible time" supplemental estimates for a $2,000,000,000 public works program.

If the resolution is adopted, the President would be required under the law to submit the plans.

In a recent appearance before the La Follette economic planning committee Col. D. H. Sawyer, director of the employment stabilization board, testified that the board is working on plans for six years advance public construction which could be undertaken without undue delay upon the enactment of funds by Congress.

Capture Shark in Battle

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 14 (INS)—Cruising off Long Beach, a 20-foot shark weighing 2000 pounds attacked a 40-foot boat containing Capt. Martin Martin Yoncich and two fishermen, who captured it without injuries after a furious two-hour battle.

Chief of the British Army, Field Marshal of Great Britain, Marshal of Russia, Austria, Prussia, Spain, Portugal, the Netherlands, a Knight of the Garter of the Holy Ghost, of the Golden Fleece, High Constable of England, Constable of the Tower, Constable of Dover Castle, Warden of the Cinque Ports, Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and thus, on and on.

Now the dusty remains of his wiry body, that he had carefully massaged with vinegar each day, lie in a great stone sarcophagus under the dome of St. Paul's in London. Nearby, sharing the crypt with him, lies Lord Nelson, who did for England, at sea, more than Wellington did on land. Nelson whose fleet the "grand army" never saw, Nelson who baffled Napoleon, and wearied him as he waited at Boulogne with 200,000 men for the invasion of England.

They live, in dim silence, side by side, these two men of all ever born most important to England's safety. And neither knows that the other is close by.

Do the British visit the gloomy tombs, as Russians flock to the shrine of Lenine? They do not. American visitors, with a guide, visit the crypt occasionally, their whispered conversation including a few remarks about Napoleon, and a great many about Lady Hamilton.

And such is fame. But it is the only thing worth while.

Please excuse the absence of news today.

12TH MAN HELD IN BANK CASE

arraigned on 10 indictments and pleaded not guilty.

His arraignment brought to light the unusual setting of father and son as defendants, ex-Mayor Lovering was arraigned last week.

Like McKnight, young Lovering was in Florida when the Middlesex County grand jury returned secret indictments.

While McKnight was enroute here, a new charge on his banking activities was made against him in connection with affairs of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Company, of South End and Dorchester.

The new trouble confronting McKnight was the charge that he is indebted to the Industrial Bank & Trust Company, to the extent of $130,000.

John V. Spalding, representative of Bank Commissioner Guy, made the charge in a discussion of the $500,000 equity action he will bring against officers of the South End bank. This equity suit would recover funds alleged to have been withdrawn by McKnight and others.

It came as depositors of the Highland Trust Co., Somerville, obtained loans on Christmas and tax club savings in line with the suggestion of the Boston Evening American two weeks ago.

The Medford Trust Co. and Revere Trust Co. depositors also joined the loan system at the First National Banks in their cities.

The Somerville bank opened its Union sq. branch to grant the loans arranged through the Boston Morris Plan Co.

CASES ONLY CIVIL

"My proceedings against McKnight are civil," Spalding said on the new charge against the Medford bank president.

"McKnight owns three-quarters of the stock of the Industrial and if he pays all he owes it will cost him $130,000.

"Primarily, my action is not criminal, as yet. But if he wants to show good faith he might pay us the $130,000."

Spalding said the stock was not in the name of McKnight but in the names of Anders D. Tellstrom, "listed as vice-president but only a gold-plated clerk;" Marion E. Pike and Vera G. Stanton "both of them stenographers."

Spalding said he would attend a series of conferences with Asst. Dist.-Atty. John J. Murphy this week in preparation for Suffolk County grand jury action against officials of the Industrial Bank.

STOCKS TOO LOW

John E. Swift, liquidating agent for the Industrial Bank & Trust Co., will notify depositors this week of a 25 per cent dividend to be paid about Dec. 21 on Christmas deposits, he announced.

Mat Promoter Seeks to Toss College Head for Row of Angles

Indianapolis, Dec. 14 (AP)—James (Jimmy) McLemore, local wrestling promoter, went to the mat with a trisection of an angle here yesterday, and came up at odds with the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University.

Mr. McLemore, who says he's been to five universities, contended the Rev. Callahan "only built up three angles of equal size through the construction of parallelograms."

The wrestling promoter said he had notified Mr. Callahan that if the university head will "first start with an angle and then trisect it," he will present $50 to the Pittsburgh community fund. If Mr. Callahan should accept the challenge and fail, Mr. McLemore said, Mr. Callahan must donate $50.

HOTEL BURNED SECOND TIME

Worcester, Dec. 14—For the second time in less than a week fire swept the old Bay State Hotel, at Main and Exchange sts., here early today, practically destroying the building and causing damage estimated at $100,000.

The flames, bursting through the roof, threatened for a time to spread through the entire downtown business section and three alarms were sounded.

A hot air explosion, coming shortly after the firemen reached the scene, blew out part of the roof and showered fire fighters with bricks, slate and other debris.

Heavy damage was done by smoke and water to several shops on the first floor.

Robert Besman and George Moy, who were asleep in the building when the blaze started, escaped.

The blaze following closely on a fire in the building last week will be rigidly probed today, according to Fire Chief Charles L. McCarthy.

Gang Film Addicts Barred by Diamond

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 14 (INS)—Jurors who like light opera and the classics are preferred by counsel for Jack "Legs" Diamond, according to their questioning of jurors here today.

"Do you like moving pictures of gang slayings and did you ever see one, and what books do you read?" are questions asked each juror. When they answer in the affirmative, Daniel Prior, chief defense counsel, asks that they be excused.

THEFT CLOSES N. H. BANK

Berlin, N. H., Dec. 14 (AP)—The Guarantee Trust Co. was closed today by Bank Commissioner Willard Rand because of the alleged misappropriation of funds by one of the institution's officers.

Joseph A. Vaillantcourt, president of the bank, said John J. O'Connell, its treasurer, had confessed that he lost $30,000 of the bank's funds in stock transactions.

According to the president, O'Connell made a complete confession two weeks ago. He said O'Connell had been entrusted with stocks to sell for the bank, but held them on the advice of a friend, who assured him their value would increase.

Instead the price fell, and O'Connell, according to the alleged confession, purchased other stocks with bank funds in the hope of making up the shortage.

Vaillantcourt said deposits in the trust company, which has a savings department, totalled $580,000, and that the institution was capitalized for $50,000.

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—President Hoover was invited today to visit Portland, Oregon, and his old home at Newberg, near by, during his attendance next summer at the Olympic games in California.

CONGRESS IN DEBATE ON THE MORATORIUM

Senator Dill Claims War Debt Move Is Plan to Balance the British Budget

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—A crackling of debate burst in both Houses of Congress today over the President's moratorium proposal.

Hardly had arrangements been made in the House by Chairman Collier, Democratic head of the ways and means committee, for the subject to come up Thursday before Rep. Beck of Pennsylvania called upon the members to support the proposal.

At about the same time, Sen. Dill, (D.), Washington, was telling the Senate that Mr. Hoover's recommendation for revival of the war debt commission was a plan to balance the British budget.

Beck told the Democrats they might be justified in believing the next President would be a Democrat, but insisted support should be given President Hoover.

ENOUGH CANCELLATIONS

"In this mater of international affairs, let's forget politics," he said. "Let's agree with the President. He may be wrong but he will at least have the comfort of knowing the country is behind him."

Dill told the Senate revision of war debts means cancellation.

"The American people have consented to all the cancellation they should consent to," he said.

"Let us not be guilty of giving them credit to continue their vast armaments."

The Senate is expected to approve the moratorium before the Christmas recess.

President Hoover today asked Congress for $136,352,420 in additional appropriations for the Federal Government during the present fiscal year.

The chief items included $60,000,000 for advances to states under the Federal aid road construction program; $20,000,000 for the public building program, and $46,872,000 for military and naval compensation.

Four More Ballots Fail to Break Senate Deadlock

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—Republicans today took control of the Senate with their slim majority, but four more ballots failed to break the deadlock over re-election of Senator Moses as president pro tempore and adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

The 13 western Republicans, foes of Moses, united behind Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, in the balloting but no candidate received a majority. Vandenberg voted for Moses.

The Democrats again lined up solidly behind Key Pittman, of Nevada.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, warned the Senate after the balloting that hereafter if any "important legislation" presented itself he would not press for an election of a president pro tem.

By sidetracking the election Moses would be left in office. The president pro tem serves until his successor is elected.

"I hereby give notice," said Robinson, "that when legislation of importance is ready I will favor proceedings to its consideration unless I am assured that there is a prospect for selection of a candidate."

Moses made no move of retaliation today against the western Republican opposing him. They were again given their committee chairmanships.

TINKHAM AIMS AT SHERMAN LAW

Washington, Dec. 14 (INS)—The first movement in Congress for liberalization of the Sherman antitrust law will be made in the House today with the introduction of a bill by Representative Tinkham (R.) of Massachusetts.

He proposed an amendment permitting consolidation of corporations or formation of associations not monopolies or in restraint of trade.

The most radical departure from the Sherman law, enacted in 1890, gives the Federal Trade Commission power to determine in advance whether proposed mergers would violate the anti-trust laws.

"Under the Coolidge administration the Department of Justice did not hesitate to advise as to the legality of proposed organizations, but this practice now has been discontinued," said Tinkham.

"It would seem that the time has come when the law-abiding business men of the country should be able to ascertain in advance whether or not their proposed business organizations are legal."

Aged Woman Gets 85 Cents to Cheer Her in Bank Closing

The need for loans to depositors of closed banks was emphasized pathetically today in Medford.

A poorly-clad woman approached the teller's window at the First National Bank in Medford with a proof of claim for a 50 per cent loan on savings in the closed Medford Trust Co.

"Madam, all you are entitled to is 85 cents," the teller said.

"I must have it, just the same. I am absolutely without a penny," the woman replied.

QUEEN MARY REVEALED IN KINDLY ROLE

Intimate Story of Palace Life Is Told by One of the Maids of Honor

London, Dec. 14 (INS)—Queen Mary of England is revealed as a gracious and kindly lady—much the same as any lady of social rank in any country of the world—by the Hon. Katherine Villiers, in her "Memories of a Maid of Honor" at the British court.

An ordinary day in the life of the Queen, according to Miss Villiers, is as follows:

8 a. m.—Rises.

9 a. m.—Breakfasts with King George. Glances at newspapers and opens personal letters. Retires to sitting room.

10 a. m.—Lady-in-waiting brings the morning mail, and letters are gone through and replies dictated to the assistant secretary.

WALK BEFORE LUNCH

11 a. m. till 1 p. m.—Audiences with visitors, interviews with members of the royal household to ensure domestic and other arrangements are proceeding smoothly, and, just before luncheon, a walk in the garden.

1 p. m.—Luncheon, usually with one or two guests or one or more members of the royal family who happen to be in town. After luncheon, the Queen visits hospitals, charity bazaars, etc., and perhaps does a little shopping in nearby Bond st. in the antique shops she loves.

QUEEN MARY

One Day's Routine Shows How Onerous Are Duties of King's Consort

4:30 p. m.—Tea. A most important function in royal family life, with the Queen presiding, sitting on a sofa in the drawing room in the private apartments. Relatives usually call during this time, sometimes the royal grandchildren.

DINNER AT 8 P. M.

6 P. M. to 7 P. M. rest in sitting-room.

8 P. M. dinner, usually an intimate affair with less than a dozen guests.

Commenting on those women who say they would like to be a Queen, Miss Villiers says:

"I wonder if they realize the work and responsibility of Queenship? The general public has little or no knowledge of the self-dedication and self-forgetfulness that go to the making of the technique they so much envy and admire; for to be a Queen requires as much technique as any humble profession, as much training as a great vocation."

FRENCH-JAPAN PLOT IN CHINA IS CHARGED

Washington Reveals a Paris-Tokio Agreement for Double Drive

Washington, Dec. 14—The Washington Evening Star says today that dispatches just received here from Canton throw an entirely new light on the Chinese situation. The Star says:

"These dispatches indicate that the Cantonese government is seriously worried about the penetration of French troops into southern China to pursue brigands.

"This news does not surprise certain well informed circles in Washington. It merely tends to confirm reports received here recently about the existence of a Japanese-French agreement dating back to 1928 and 1929 wherein the present developments in China were envisaged by both governments.

"According to reliable reports visits were exchanged between Japanese and French high officials residing in Indo-China for the purpose of reaching an understanding regarding certain parts of China which should not be under the control of the weak and corrupt Chinese administration.

"The regions referred to were Manchuria and the Province of Yunan. The latter is north of Tonkin—a French colony—and is the main caravan path between Tibet, Burma and the sea. This tentative understanding is reported to have been made definite during the visit of one of the Japanese princes to Paris."

Nanking Hears Chiang May Quit Presidency

Nanking, Dec. 14 (AP)—Reports that President Chiang Kai-Shek had resigned were denied in political circles tonight, but a belief prevailed that Chiang and other high officials are likely to retire within a fortnight.

Japan's Stock Exchanges Close With Gold Embargo

Tokio, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Tokio Stock Exchange and other exchanges throughout Japan rose as high as 60 yen (30) following suspension of the gold standard and reimposition of a gold embargo by the new cabinet.

Korekiyo Takahashi, new finance minister, said today the government will adopt no artificial measure to control the monetary exchange and will allow the situation caused by the gold embargo to follow its own course.

The stock exchanges are expected to remain closed at least until the middle of the week.

The Mitsui Bank was reported to have purchased more than 100,000,000 yen worth of dollars in anticipation of a dollar rise and other banks lesser amounts, but well into the tens of millions.

$15,000,000 Gold Coming to U. S. From Japan

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Officers of the Yokohama Specie Bank here today said they had been advised a $15,000,0000 shipment of the bank's gold would leave Japan tomorrow for the United States. They denied published reports that the Japanese government had countermanded earlier permission for the bank to ship the metal.

Johnson Demands All U. S. Notes Upon Manchuria

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—A resolution calling upon the administration to give the Senate all notes and paper exchanged with foreign governments relating to the Manchurian dispute was introduced today by Senator Johnson (R.) of California.

SILVER, RELIEF BILLS OFFERED

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—Bills to lessen the silver problem, to relieve the needy and for numerous other purposes were proposed today in both congressional branches.

Just as he last week told President Hoover he would do, Senator Smoot sponsored legislation to allow foreign governments to pay debts to this country in silver. It was referred to the finance committee, which he heads.

Fifty million bushels of Farm Board wheat would be made available to the needy under a bill introduced by Senator Wheeler (D.), Montana.

The grain would be distributed through the Red Cross and other national relief organizations.

Children First Concern in Depression, Says Miss Abbott

Washington, Dec. 14—"Greatly expanded" resources to meet increased demands upon its services are sought by the Children's Bureau.

Grace Abbott

Its chief, Miss Grace Abbott, pointed out in her annual report to the secretary of labor, that "children suffer the most serious permanent losses in period of depression and should be the first to be considered in planning remedial measures."

"The development of adequate local and state resources for the relief of distress and the prevention of dependency and delinquency are urgent," she reported.

Mrs. Burgard Denies Romance With Tibbett

Reno, Nev., Dec. 14—Rumors from New York have hinted that Lawrence Tibbett, the noted baritone, is preparing another love song—marriage to Mrs. John Clark Burgard, of Burlingame. But—

Lawrence Tibbett

"I can't understand how these rumors got started," declared Mrs. Burgard, who expects to obtain a divorce today. "I do not intend to marry Tibbett. In fact, I don't think I will marry anyone again."

Mrs. Tibbett, a former Los Angeles school teacher, secured a Reno decree last December.

York, Now 35, Has "Keen Sense of Duty"

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Duke of York, second son of King George, and who might be his successor on the British throne, celebrated his 35th birthday today.

Duke of York

The King and Queen gave a family birthday party at Buck- Prince George, Prince George, youngest of the monarch's sons, and Queen Maud of Norway, who is King George's sister, were among the guests.

The Duke is known to the country at large as a man of determination and keen sense of duty, who has always seen to it that nothing stood in the way of his filling his position with efficiency.

Industrial welfare, and trade and manufacturing problems have been his special study.

Malden Woman Is Buried in Splendor of a Century Ago

HORSES DRAW HER HEARSE TO GRAVE

Six Grandsons of Mrs. Joanna Buckley, 86, Serve as Pall-Bearers

Mrs. Joanna Buckley, who died at the age of 86, having ridden only once in an auto and having expressed dislike for the vehicle, went to her last resting place in Malden today in accordance with her dying wish—behind a pair of black, docked-tail horses and a driver wearing a stove-pipe hat.

Two other horse-drawn vehicles, a barouche containing flowers and a hack containing the family mourners, led the funeral procession of motor cars from her home, 64 Jackson st., to Sacred Heart Church for solemn high mass of requiem, and thence to the grave in St. Mary's cemetery.

CROWDS SEE CORTEGE.

Crowds lined the curbs and business was temporarily suspended as many persons gathered in the main thoroughfares of Malden for a glimpse of something that was a common sight not many years ago.

Time works change, but it worked no change in Mrs. Buckley's preference for the horse and her aversion to the gasoline vehicle.

She lived in Malden for 65 years. She was the widow of Timothy Buckley. She died with the request that her body not go to the cemetery in a motor car.

Three "cabbies" in tall hats of ancient vintage, tassels on the horses and an old-fashioned charcoal footwarmer in the back were parts of the equipage.

GRANDSONS PALL-BEARERS

The drivers were Manuel Thomas of Winter st., Cambridge; John Sheehan of Trowbridge st., Cambridge, and Joseph Roper of Cambridge st., Cambridge.

The procession moved slowly to the clop of high-stepping horses on the cobbles and the trailing automobiles proceeding at snail's pace through Malden sq.

Six grandsons of the deceased were pall-bearers: Patrick Cronin, John McManus and the Lynch brothers, Charles, Frank, Irving and John.

Rev. Thomas Markham was celebrant of the mass, which was attended by a host of relatives and friends. Rev. Henry M. Tatten was deacon and Rev. Stephen J. Chamberlain was sub-deacon; the former conducted the committal service.

$1,520,000 FOR LENIN BEACON

Moscow, Dec. 14 (INS)—Plans were under way today for the construction of a 370-foot bronze statue of Nikolai Lenin, to be erected on one of the dams at Leningrad at a cost of approximately $1,250,000.

Money for the huge monument is being collected by subscription.

The statue, which is to serve as a lighthouse, is planned in spite of one of Lenin's last requests, that no monuments be erected for him.

DRIVER SAVED IN BRIDGE DIVE

Irving Goldstein, 21, of Blossom st., Chelsea, narrowly escaped death today when his automobile skidded on Wellington bridge, Medford, crashed through the railing and dropped 20 feet to the bed of the Mystic river.

Metropolitan police, aided by passers-by, extricated Goldstein from the wreckage of his auto and took him to Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

After receiving treatment for numerous cuts on the face and arms, Goldstein was allowed to go home.

Police say the car got out of control on the slippery car tracks, and before Goldstein could regain control, plunged into the guard rail.

More than 20 feet of the railing was torn away by the machine before it toppled over the edge to the river bed.

Autoist Arraigned in Woman's Death

Neil P. Coyle, 37, of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, whose auto turned over on Wollaston blvd. Saturday night, fatally injuring Mrs. Mary McDonald of Greenwich st., Dorchester, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving so as to endanger in Quincy district court today.

The case was continued one week, and Coyle was released in $300 bail.

WOMAN'S FUNERAL TURNS TIME BACK TO THE 'HORSE AGE'

For 86 years, 65 of them in Malden, Mrs. Joanna Buckley lived a happy life, riding only once in an automobile. She feared and detested motor vehicles. Then she died, with one of her last stipulations that a horse-drawn hearse bear her body to the grave and that horse-drawn equipages constitute her funeral cortege. Today that wish was complied with. Photo shows the flower carriage, the hearse and the ancient hack for mourners drawn up before Sacred Heart Church, Malden.

BOY IS 'HOUDINI ACT' VICTIM

Northeast Harbor, Me., Dec. 14 (INS)—A "boy Houdini" who fell victim to one of his own stunts, was the theory advanced today by officials investigating the discovery of the body of Everett Allen, 14-year-old boy scout, hanging from a tree, his hands bound behind his back.

Dr. E. N. Morrison, medical examiner for Hancock county, today found that the death of Allen was due to accidental hanging.

Dr. Morrison reported the boy's neck had been broken. Allen was said by his friends to have been a crank on knot-tying and once before had fallen from a tree while performing a stunt with ropes.

Allen, a member of a local boy scout troop, was an expert at tying knots, it was revealed.

WIFE IS BEATEN; O. K. SAYS JUDGE

Brunswick, Me., Dec. 14—In police court today, Adelard Beaupre, 37, pleaded guilty to charges of beating his wife, Mary, 35, pulling out her hair and blacking both eyes, declaring that he was drunk at the time and didn't remember clearly, but would plead anyway.

Then Judge Joseph H. Rousseau looked down from the bench and declared:

"The woman deserves all she got. I know something of conditions in this home."

Then he sentenced Beaupre to one month and suspended it on six months probation.

Beaupre has filed a $10,000 alienation of affections suit for $10,000 against Adelard Nadeau of Brunswick, charging Nadeau with stealing the affection of Mrs. Beaupre.

Mexico City, Dec. 14 (US)—Only three arrests marked the gathering of more than 300,000 pilgrims in honor of the 400th anniversary of the appearance of the Virgin of Guadalupe, police disclosed today.

KAISER FEARS FOR HIS RICHES

London, Dec. 14 (INS)—The Daily Herald today printed a dispatch from Doorn, Holland, where the former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany lives in exile, declaring the former German emperor was worried about the million-dollar-a-year income he receives from his German properties because of the activities of Hitlerites and Communists.

The dispatch stated the Kaiser was worried one of the parties would come into power. He watches news reports of the radicals' activities closely.

STOLEN CONRY SILVER FOUND

Sixty pieces of silverware, part of the loot of a burglary at the home of Traffic Commissioner Joseph F. Conry, last August, were recovered today in a second-hand jewelry store in Washington st., South End.

They were seized by Detectives Mark Morrison and Thomas McLaughlin of headquarters as a result of their check of a report of a purchase made by the store proprietor to the police.

The detectives recognized them as fitting the description of the Conry silver and the traffic commissioner identified them and took to police headquarters matching pieces from his home in Rockwood st., Jamaica Plain.

The jeweler told police he bought the silver from a man about 35 years old whom he could identify.

Conry said he was grateful to the two officers for "recovering a portion of the valuables taken from my home." Police said they had no complete inventory of the articles taken.

OFFICERS OUT TO ROUND UP SNEAKS

Squad Picked From Various Divisions to Work Daily Among Christmas Crowds

Clamping on brand new spurs as detectives—even if only temporary—38 especially assigned policemen were sent into the downtown sector today to weed out pickpockets, shoplifters and express thieves.

The special men were picked from various divisions to augment the regular pickpocket squad, and were sent into the shopping district to remain there until Christmas, in charge of Inspector John A. Dorsey and Sergt. Edward Keating.

As they left headquarters to take up their new assignments they had still ringing in their ears an intimation that those of their number who made good probably would find themselves attached to the bureau of criminal investigation.

Capt. John M. Anderson of the bureau gave the detective recruits a "pep talk" before they went crime-tracking and told the men they would work in pairs and would be on duty from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m.

"Later," he said, "when we are looking for detectives, we won't have to ask the station house what man to give us, because I ought to get enough information now about the crowd doing this work, if you are any good at all."

Each night the records of the individual men will be checked and throughout their holiday tour their accomplishments will be watched, Capt. Anderson said.

Before leaving headquarters, the men were supplied with photographs of well-known pickpockets, shoplifters and express thieves.

TWO INJURED IN BLAST ON BOAT

Provincetown, Dec. 14 (AP)—Two men had remarkable escapes from death today in an explosion which destroyed the 50-foot flounder dragger Liberty.

Manuel Santos, 43, owner of the boat, was blown from the cabin of the craft to the wharf at which it was tied, as were several barrels of ice which had been on deck. Santos suffered severe burns. Frank Marshall, who was on the deck, was blown into the water.

The explosion occurred as Santos was cranking the engine. About 600 gallons of gasoline were consumed in the explosion or the fire which followed.

WRECK LAID TO 'FIXED' SWITCH

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—An accident on the New Haven Railroad November 11 at East Taunton, Mass., in which three men were injured, was found by the safety bureau of the Interstate Commerce Commission today to have been caused by malicious tampering with a switch.

The investigators found a switch lock had been forced and the lever turned just enough to move the switch point and cause the wreck but in such way as to leave the green lamp showing.

ARREST NEAR AS HITLER 'RUNS'

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP)—When correspondents called at Adolf Hitler's hotel today for the open letter to Chancellor Bruening which he had promised them, they discovered he had gone to Munich without leaving any explanation for his departure.

There was no official confirmation, but it was learned the police had planned to arrest the National Socialist leader for violation of the "Christmas truce" on political agitation if he received the foreign press again.

The police today forbade a symphony concert the National Socialists were to have held Wednesday, on the grounds it violated the "Christmas truce."

ELY BACK FROM PARTY PARLEY IN CAPITAL

Gov. Ely was back in Boston today after a busy week-end in which he conferred with Al Smith and other leading Democrats in New York and Washington and attended numerous functions.

Another who participated in a Washington "victory luncheon" was Carl Dreyfus, executive representative of William Randolph Hearst in New England.

Mr. Dreyfus attended a luncheon of leading Democrats at which others present were Gov. Ely, Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to Woodrow Wilson; Speaker Garner of the House of Representatives, Senators Walsh and Coolidge of Massachusetts, Senators Ashurst of Arizona, George of Georgia, Walsh of Montana, Lewis of Illinois, King of Utah and Bulkley of Ohio, and other Democratic representatives, including the four from this state. John H. Fahey, publisher of the Worcester Evening Post, was also a guest.

There was a long discussion of Democratic policies and assurances were exchanged that the North will be given its proper share in the affairs of the party.

SAFE CRACKERS ARE FOILED IN SALEM

Inability of thieves to open the safe in the Social Poolroom, Essex st., Salem, after the combination had been knocked off, cost them between $700 and $800 in loot, it was revealed today.

William Schaffer, the manager, discovered the attempted break when he opened the poolroom this morning. Police found that entrance had been gained through a rear window, which, police said, had been left unlocked.

Included in the valuables in the safe was a quantity of diamonds in addition to the amount of money.

5937 Jailed Every Day in New York City

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—More prisoners were incarcerated in the city jails in 1930 than in any year since 1915, Richard C. Patterson, Jr., commissioner of the department of correction, reported today.

A total of 124,998 men and 26,003 women were jailed here last year. The daily average census of the inmates in 1930 was 5973, a figure exceeded only in 1915, when the average was 8418.

Higher Education Fails as Aid to Civic Activities

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Higher education for girls does not necessarily result in homemakers who take an increased interest in community activities, a Columbia University expert finds.

Dr. Willis Melmoth Bomar, making a survey for Teachers College, said the greatest amount of participation by homemakers in constructive community work was found in a city which did not have the highest percentage of high school or college graduates.

Cities studied by Dr. Bomar were Cranston, R. I.; Atlanta; Lincoln, Neb.; Spokane, Wash., and San Francisco.

NOBLE CLAIM HIT BY PROSECUTOR

Lawrence, Dec. 14—Russell Noble is guilty of the murder of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis and any attempt by Noble to "besmirch her character to obtain his freedom is foolhardy," Asst. Dist. Atty. John E. Wilson declared here in Calvary Baptist Church.

Speaking before the Men's Brotherhood of the Church, the second assistant district attorney asserted that through his study of the slain Haverhill widow's life and testimony of character witnesses at the trial he was convinced that Noble's claims that she tried to entice him are falsehoods.

December-May 'Tragedy' Bared in Singer's Suit

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 14 (AP)—A separation suit filed by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Young, a radio singer known as Beth Young, against John H. Young, retired theatrical scenic artist, was revealed today when William D. Cunningham, Mrs. Young's attorney, made application in Supreme Court for alimony and counsel fees.

The suit is based on charges of cruelty. Cunningham told Justice Morschauser that on October 9 Young poured hot coffee down his wife's neck. Young, Cunningham said, is 71, and Mrs. Young 42, and he told the court their marriage had been "a tragedy, partly because of the difference in their ages."

Young is a millionaire, Cunningham said, and until he retired a few years ago made stage sets for David Belasco, Florenz Ziegfeld, Klaw & Erlanger and other big producers. The Youngs were married in 1911 and have two sons, one a student at Yale and the other at Phillips Exeter Academy.

Decision was reserved.

Salem Man Seized in Theft of Oil

Charged with breaking and entering and larceny of five gallons of oil, Ambrose A. Mackey, 24, of Broadway, Salem, was held in $1000 today for the grand jury when arraigned before Judge George B. Sears in Salem court. The oil was taken from a Broadway gasoline station.

PRISON MUTINY IS FOILED AT LEAVENWORTH

Leavenworth, Kans., Dec. 14 (INS)—Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons today confirmed the report of a mutiny in the federal prison.

Bates said 20 prisoners in the boiler house refused to man the boilers in an attempt to throw the prison into darkness as a means of inciting riot among other prisoners.

The anticipated riot was thwarted by the combined day and night guard force, Bates said.

Relief to Be Asked for Prison Crowding

(Copyright, 1931, [illegible], Inc., and Kansas City Post)

Leavenworth, Kan., Dec. 14—The desperate break made at the federal prison Friday by seven convicts may result in Congress being asked to relieve immediately crowded housing conditions at the institution, it was learned today.

The population is almost double the number which the prison was built to receive. There are about 3800 men imprisoned in the place, planned to house 2000.

Hundreds are serving terms for violations of the prohibition law. This phase of law violation long has caused worry to prison authorities and is blamed for considerable of the overcrowding.

It was pointed out after the riot here 1929 the Department of Justice got housing relief. The army's disciplinary barracks was taken over by the civil authorities as a prison annex for drug addicts.

Last October the cells again became crowded in the main prison, when two and three men were put in small one-man cells.

This crowded condition is the root of all the trouble within the prison, officials believe. It is generally known that guards were "expecting anything to happen at the pen."

No trace has been found of Earl Thayer, 63-year-old mail robber, who is still at liberty.

TWO ARE SLAIN IN CABIN DUEL

Hazleton, Pa., Dec. 14 (INS)—"Cabin fever," that inexplicable mania for the forests which O. Henry declared made enemies of the best of friends, today was held responsible for a three-cornered duel which resulted in the deaths of two youths during a deer-hunting trip.

The dead were Peter Hudak, 18, and Joseph Bubal, 17, both of Stockton. Hudak's brother, Jacob, 19, was held for the slaying of Bubal who, police declare, was shot down after he had fatally wounded Peter.

With Michael Seechora, fourth member of the party, the youths set out Friday night on a deer hunt in Evergreen valley.

Arriving at the hunting grounds, the forest cast its queer spell over the party. Bickering, arguments and quarrels broke out. Bubal, according to Peter Hudak's deathbed statement, ended the quarrel by shooting his chum. As Peter fell, he cried to his brother:

"He got me—now you get him!"

Jacob, berserk at sight of his brother's wounds, fired at Bubal, fatally wounding his erstwhile friend.

JOHN D.. 92 YEARS YOUNG

A familiar figure on the golf course at Ormond, Fla., is John D. Rockefeller, shown in his latest photo as he prepared to take his place at the tee. The oil magnate, who retired from the presidency of the Standard Oil Co., Dec. 4, 1911, wears glasses to protect his eyes from the Florida sun. At 92 he keeps in excellent condition by a daily round. Recently he told reporters, when asked for an interview, that his words were not news, but that he was "glad for everything I have in the world." (International Newsreel photo.)

Kansas for Roosevelt

Albany, Dec. 14 (INS)—Governor Roosevelt was assured today by Governor Harry H. Woodring, Democrat, of Kansas, that he could count on the Kansas delegation to next year's Democratic National Convention.

Hope Gone, Dies in Cell

Budapest, Dec. 14 (INS)—Gen. Joseph Schill, Fascist leader who aspired to be Hungary's dictator, was dead today, a suicide in his jail cell. He was awaiting trial on suspicion of planning a "putsch."

GILLETTE PAID 75 MILLION ON STOCK

The dividend record of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. was introduced today at the hearing on the $21,000,000 suit of minority stockholders against certain directors, and it was brought out that from 1917 to 1930 the company paid $75,757,110.03 in dividend disbursements.

Atty. Louis E. Connick of New York, counsel for John E. Aldred, chairman of the board of directors, read the figures with Aldred again on the witness stand. He also brought out that the company in 1930 bought real estate for $16,241,640.62, and cited the present depreciated value at $11,024,871.74.

Atty. William G. Thompson, counsel for the plaintiffs, was absent because of illness, but Damon E. Hall looked after their interests and there was no delay.

12 HELD IN RUM BOAT SEIZURES

Providence, R. I., Dec. 14 (AP)—Crews of the rum boats Je T'Aime and Eaglet were held in Federal court here today. Counsel for men of the T'Aimee said he would contest American jurisdiction on the ground that the boat was beyond the three-mile limit when seized.

His clients pleaded not guilty to possessing and transporting liquor. They are Manuel Goulart and Joseph Goulart of New Bedford, Joseph Souza of Berkeley, Mass., Joseph Flores of Fairhaven, Mass., Harry G. Kambern of Staten Island and Ralph I. Law and Lemond Thomas of Providence. Manuel Goulart was held in $3000 and the others in $2500 each.

George Davidson, Patrick Connors and Leroy Fitzler, all of Tiverton, George McGraw of Fall River and Percy King, all of the Eaglet, pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the tariff act of 1930 and were held in $3000 [illegible].

FILM HEADS IN 'TRUST' SUIT

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14 (AP)—An injunction suit filed in Federal Court today charged motion picture producers with combining in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The suit, filed for the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, named as the defendants the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., of which former Postmaster General Will H. Hays is head, and the Cleveland Film Board of Trade.

The defendants, it was alleged, control 98 per cent of the film production and distribution in the United States.

The petition charged that the defendants use uniform contracts in their dealing with independent exhibitors, and as a result exhibitors are denied a "free, untrammeled and open market."

EXPERIMENTAL APPELLATE COURT URGED

Establishment of an experimental appellate body of judges for Boston municipal court is recommended in a report filed today by the Judicial Council of Massachusetts.

This court would review sentences imposed in that court instead of the present system of appeals to the superior court, which the council says often results in double trials.

If the recommendation is enacted there would be one trial on the facts only. In the event the defendants wished that trial to take place in the superior court before a jury, the case would be sent there at once.

And if the defendant does not ask for such removal the case would be tried in the municipal court without appeal except on questions of law, which would go to the appellate division.

"We do not believe the Commonwealth can afford not to try this plan when the public is clamoring for some constructive work to meet the problem of crime," the report stated.

Other recommendations are:

Continuation for the present of the practice allowing district court judges to sit with juries in the superior court for the trial of misdemeanor cases.

More adequate funds for the board of bar examiners.

Designation by the chief justice of the Supreme Court of grievance committees outside of Suffolk County, to assist the court as the Boston committee does in Suffolk.

Raising the entry fee for civil actions in the superior court from $3, fixed in 1858, to $10.

Revision of the forms of writ used in actions at law to make them more intelligible to persons on whom such writs are served.

The council consists of Atty. T. Hovey Gage, Worcester, chairman; former Justice Lawton of the Superior Court; Judge Charles T. Davis of the Land Court; Judge Harry R. Dow of Essex County Probate Court; Chief Justice Bolster of the Boston Municipal Court, Judge Hibbard of Pittsfield district court and Attys. Frederick W. Mansfield, William G. Thompson and Frank W. Grinnell.

POWER INQUIRY HIT BY HOOVER BUDGET CUT

Washington, Dec. 14—Scuttling of the Federal Trade Commission's power trust investigation was threatened today by President Hoover's sponsorship of a radical slash in appropriations.

If the present budget stands unchanged by Congress, investigation will be virtually paralyzed next July.

The almost inevitable effect, commission schedules revealed, will be to exempt the mighty Morgan-owned power systems, with a capitalization running well into the billions.

PROGRESSIVES AROUSED.

These systems have lately become the titans of the electrical industry. They are deemed the key to the concentration of the industry under substantially unified control.

Progressives in both Houses of Congress planned today to fight for increased appropriations, over the commission's budget allowance, since budget procedure ties the commission's hands.

Their first aim is to pierce the mysteries of Morgan financing, as those of half the industry have been pierced for the first time by federal authority.

MORGAN CONTROL.

Their second is to prevent:

Suspension of emasculation of the inquiry on the eve fo the Presidential election.

Concealment of stock "watering," revealed thus far as amounting to hundreds of millions, and of holding company charges saddled upon rate-payers that yield profits ranging up to 300 per cent.

Nullifying of the Government's expected victory over the billion-dollar Electric Bond & Share Co. in a court fight begun three years ago and expected to end in a few months.

Granting of immunity to the Cities Service and associated gas and electric systems, as well as the mammoth Morgan enterprises.

The chief Morgan combines affected are the United Corp. and the Niagara-Hudson Power Corp., which blankets most of New York State outside the metropolis, is increasingly linked to the New York city system, and the greatest of all the country's power systems.

PRICE LEVELS HOLD STEADY

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—With American domestic price levels for the first time in almost two years having acquired comparative stability there is the likelihood that the United States may be the first nation to recover from the world depression, according to the annual report on international trade issued today by the National Foreign Trade Council.

It was pointed out that wholesale prices in the United States have remained for five months within about two per cent of the index for last June in contrast with the drop of 11 per cent in the first six months of this year.

This stability is also in further contrast with the accumulated reduction in average wholesale prices in the United States of more than 25 per cent for the past two years.

The general average of prices in European countries has dropped off this year by less than 10 per cent or about two-thirds of the rate of reduction experienced in 1930.

GIVE-A-JOB-FOR XMAS STARTS

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—Since October 1 the emergency unemployment relief committee paid out $1,280,100 in wages, of which 366,500 went to women, the organization reported today. The committee had 25,675 persons on its payroll.

The "Give a Job for Christmas" campaign, which started today, was expected to provide work for many hundreds.

Adoption of the five-day work week and an eight-hour work day to provide more jobs was recommended by the Republican advisory committee of New York County on unemployment.

Immediate speeding up of State and municipal public works projects was also urged. The recommendations were turned over to Assemblyman William L. Marcy, chairman of the joint legislative committee on unemployment.

Grief Kills Husband, 91, as His Wife Dies

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 14 (AP)—Charles H. Vosburgh, 91, who, with his wife, said they never had a quarrel or scolded each other during their 68 years of married life, is dead. Friends said he had grieved constantly since the death of his wife last Saturday.

U. S. Woman Ship Suicide

Southampton, Eng., Dec. 14 (AP)—Miss Phoebe Sorel, formerly of Douglaston, L. I., who died here recently from pistol wounds sustained on the liner Asturias, was described as a suicide at a coroner's inquest today.

For More Than

twenty years Ann J. MacHale devoted herself to the art of keeping women youthful looking. When a woman's hair begins to fade and turn gray, age begins to show, and so to counteract this condition, Ann J. MacHale Hair Color Restorer should be used. It is not a dye, and will not discolor the hair or stain. It brings the hair back to its original color gradually and surely. Ann J. MacHale's Res-a-viv is a marvelous cream, nourishing the skin, removing wrinkles, preventing them from returning. Both the Res-a-viv and Hair Color Restorer sell for $1 each. Her Cleansing Cream (75c) liquifies on touching the skin, dissolving out all the day's accumulations of dust, dirt and make-up. Her Quince Cream Lotion (50c) is an excellent preparation for the hands. These Ann J. MacHale products may be obtained at the S. S. Pierce stores.

Elastic Stockings For Mother

Mother is a homebody, but she is also VERY human and perhaps a little vain. She is not going to tell you how she's yearned to have her ankles look trim, but the gift she'd like best would be a pair of elastic stockings. The ALLEN-PAYSON CO. has EVERY type of elastic stocking, both imported and domestic; to-the-knee and over-the-knee and they will comfort the varicose veins of anybody's mother and make her ankles and legs look shapely. They are priced so that anyone can afford them. 6 months' free repair service. The ALLEN-PAYSON CO., 110 Tremont St., suite 310. LIB. 6649. Mail orders.

Cleansing 75c

Is your wardrobe ready for the holiday festivities? If not, just send those frocks to the House of Liederman, one of New England's largest cleansing establishments, for rejuvenation . . . and they'll come back looking like new. The price at all their stores is 75c for all garments, with the exception of fur coats and fancy evening gowns. Their cleansing shops are so handy, too—there's one in every neighborhood. If you've clothes that need altering or repairing—here's the place to send them. Liederman's have a large alteration department, just for such convenient services as lengthening skirts — repairing torn and worn places—and all those tasks you dread doing yourself. For immediate auto service call Highlands 4000. Their town shops are at 8 Winter st., and the North Station Terminal.

Devotedly,

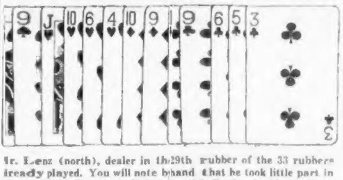
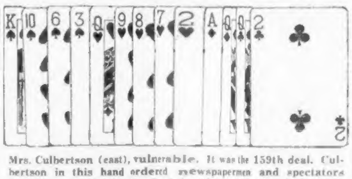
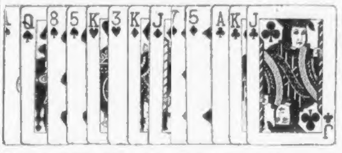
'JUMP BID' SCORES HIGHEST IN BRIDGE BATTLE



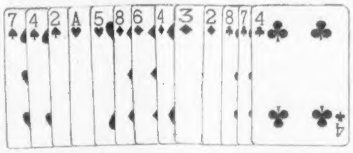
Mr. Lenz (north), dealer in the 29th rubber of the 33 rubbers already played. You will note by hand that he took little part in what Mrs. Culbertson called "a beautifully developed slam."



Mrs. Culbertson (east), vulnerable. It was the 159th deal. Culbertson in this hand ordered newspapermen and spectators from the room, fearing the hard battle was annoying his wife.



Mr. Culbertson (west), who was vulnerable, made original spade bid. He played the hand that gave Culbertsons 1690 points, the largest score on any rubber so far.



Mr. Jacoby (south) had little to say in this hand. You'll note only card above an 8 in his hand was the ace of hearts.

The bidding—East, one heart; south, passed. Culbertson made a bid of two spades. (A jump bid in Culbertson system announces a game at some bid, yet to be selected. They are called forcing takeouts.) Lenz passed. Mrs. Culbertson bid three spades to assure her partner good trump support and to allow him to make bid he planned when making "jump bid." Jacoby passed. Then Culbertson bid six spades.

JACOBY LAUDS THE 'OFFICIAL SYSTEM'

By OSWALD JACOBY

(One of the famous "Four Horsemen" of bridge and Sidney Lenz's partner in the Lenz-Culbertson match.)

Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.

New York, Dec. 14—When I first started to play with Mr. Lenz, the 1-2-3 system as played by him was rather unfamiliar to me except in a general way, since I had always played a system known as "one over one" developed principally by Mr. P. H. Sims in conjunction with several other players including myself.

At no time have I ever played the Culbertson system. The one over one system is completely unadaptable to any but very expert players who have played with each other frequently.

LAUDS OFFICIAL SYSTEM

From my first study of the official system I have become convinced that its simplicity made it by far the best for all but expert players. Since testing it for five nights in this most difficult match, I am perfectly convinced that what applies to various beginners applies to all players and that the 1-2-3 system is superior to any I have so far attempted.

The following hand illustrates fully the great advantages of this system:

NORTH
S—K Q J 10 8
H—A K 7 5
D—Q
C—A 9 2

WEST
S—4 3
H—J 9 4

LENZ OPENS BIDDING

Our seating arrangement was Lenz at North, Mrs. Culbertson East, Ely Culbertson West and myself at South. West was the dealer. West and East passed during the entire auction. North opened with an official system two-spade bid, to which I responded with two no-trump.

One of the advantages of the official 1-2-3 system is that the two-bid is only a semi-forcing bid, and therefore can be made on a fairly strong hand without waiting for the "power-house" that occurs once a night.

On the other hand, partner does not need to jump the original two-bid because the original bidder guarantees with his two-bid that he will rebid his hand if his partner does not pass.

BID EASILY MADE

Lenz rebid his spade suit, bidding three, and I now showed the great strength of my hand by bidding four no-trump, to which he replied with five spades, knowing that I would not invite a slam without some strength in his suit. I now bid six spades, which, of course, were easily made, with one hundred honors.

Another hand on which my partner and I arrived at the best declaration, just stopping short of a slam by perfect bidding, was the following:

NORTH
S—Q-4-2
H—Q
D—A-J-10-8-7
C—A-K-J-9

WEST
—K-10-3
—J-8-4-2
—4-3

EAST
S—A-8-7-6-5
H—K-9-3

SOUTH

H—A-10-7-6-5
D—K-Q-9-5-2

FORCING BID USED

West was the dealer again, and passed. North opened the bidding with one diamond which East overcalled with one spade. I made a forcing bid of three hearts to which North responded with four clubs. This was excellent bidding and gave me very valuable information.

A three no-trump bid might have put us in trouble. Having nothing to offer in spades I bid only four diamonds in order not to misrepresent my hand, but it was of course understood after my forcing bid that we should not stop short of game. Lenz went to five diamonds as expected, and I passed.

Had he not shown his club suit which told me his outside strength was in the suit of which I held a singleton, I might have risked a bid of six diamonds. We had to lose two spade tricks. If my hand had contained two clubs and one spade I would have made the slam bid.

A hand where a slam bid should be reached in any system was the following:

S—3
H—8
D—A K J 5 2
C—K Q 9 7 4 3

WEST
S—J 10 9 8 7
D—Q 4
C—10 6 2

EAST
S—6 5 2
H—Q 7 6 5 4 2
D—9 7 3
C—J

SOUTH
S—A K Q 4
H—A J 9
D—10 8 6
C—A 8 5

East passed, I bid one no-trump and Lenz made a forcing bid of three clubs. I immediately bid six clubs and we easily made seven.

The grand slam, however, should not be bid and would not be bid by any good player, as it depended on the location of the queen of diamonds.

LEARN EACH OTHER'S STYLE

Now that we have had the experience of one week's play against the Culbertson pair we know more about their bidding, surprise plays, psychics and other "tools of the trade." Of course, Ely is too clever a player not to change his tactics from time to time and we certainly cannot base our future plans on what we have noticed in the past.

One of his favorite bluff bids was a no-trump with a singleton even when the opponents had did that suit. Needless to say he did not do so when vulnerable. He obtained good results with this kind of a bid on one hand.

I believe, however, that Ely places too much reliance on the strength of three to the queen in a suit which had been bid by his partner. In giving too many raises on such trump assistance he has stepped into a few costly sets.

Psychics and semi-psychics have not been profitable during the first week of play, although they did not cause any serious losses. Such psychic bids were easily recognized by the opponents without difficulty, and were simply ignored.

After some mediocre play during the first two sessions of the week we all settled down to business, and the second half produced some very interesting and keenly contested bridge. The Culbertsons did some very artful bidding and playing on a number of hands, and in spite of the fact that they proved costly to us, the keenness of the competition made the play all the more enjoyable.

OATH GIVEN 150 NEW CITIZENS

Duties of citizenship and laws of the country were outlined by Judge James A. Lowell in federal court today to 150 men and women who qualified in naturalization tests and took the oath of allegiance from Clerk Frank Mason.

About 75 men and women who qualified earlier and whose papers were held up for further inquiry were administered the citizenship oath in another session of the court.

SUNDAY REST IS BIG AID TO MRS. CULBERTSON

Following is another article in the series written by Mrs. Josephine Culbertson on the bridge match between herself and her husband, Ely Culbertson, and Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson are the originators of the approach-forcing system of contract bidding:

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player. Written Especially for the Boston Evening American

Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.

New York, Dec. 14—Welcomed with enthusiasm my Sunday rest from the gruelling 150-rubber contract bridge match to decide the respective merits of the Culbertson (sometimes called the "one over one") and official systems.

We have now completed 33 rubbers and, although according to the conditions I must play at least 42 rubbers more before my husband may choose another partner, I doubt if a more exciting session will present itself.

Saturday night's battle was the most furious we have experienced. The hands were so breath-taking that both the players and the large gallery of newspapermen, who are natural-born kibitzers, were electrified.

FLOODED WITH TALISMENS

Publicly thank all our good-wishers, especially those kind enough to send me numerous good luck tokens and talismens. As a rule, I am not superstitious, but in this historic match I am not neglecting the slightest advantage. To date I have received the following:

Eight elephants (white).

Seven rabbits' feet (one to be put secretly in my husband's pocket, which I did).

Three chicken wishbones (one tied in a Christmas ribbon).

Three four-leaf clovers.

Two horseshoes.

One large wishbone (presumably of a duck or even of a turkey).

STICKS TO SYSTEM

I have faithfully followed all the instructions given to me by my friends on just how to make the best use of the various amulets. However, I am relying mainly upon the approach-forcing system and Ely.

We began at the 29th rubber with our side 5650 points down, but with spirits undaunted. In fact, my husband even renewed through the press his offer of bets (all his winnings are to go to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children). The first four deals were uneventful, but the 159th deal brought a beautifully developed slam. The cards were:

EAST DEALER—EAST-WEST VULNERABLE

NORTH (Lenz)
S—J 9
H—J 10 6 4
D—10 9
C—10 9 8 5 3

WEST (Culbertson)

C—Q 2

SOUTH (Jacoby)

D—8 6 4 3 2
C—8 7 4

Sitting East, I opened the bidding with one heart. South passed and my partner made a jump bid of two spades.

LARGEST SINGLE SCORE

A jump bid in a new suit is a forcing bid, announcing a game at some bid yet to be selected and for bidding, neither partner to pass until a game declaration is agreed upon. These forcing takeouts are the backbone of the Culbertson (approach-forcing) system and are so important that they were adopted also in the official system.

Mr. Lenz passed my husband's two spade bid and I bid three spades, which shows to partner good trump support, for otherwise my response would have been two no trumps.

My partner, feeling that I might not carry him to a slam, quite correctly took the entire initiative into his own hands by bidding six spades, and easily made his contract. We won a rubber of 1690 points, I believe the largest since the match started.

On the next hand Mr. Jacoby attacked at the wrong time and was wrecked on the invisible rocks of distribution. He was penalized 600 points and only his brilliant self-control under stress saved him from a more severe loss.

After desperately trying a heart bid he was finally maneuvered into playing the hand at two spades doubled and that after I had originally bid one spade. The hand follows:

Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH (Lenz)
S—6
H—9 6 5
D—Q J 8 3 2
C—K Q J 8

WEST (Culbertson)
S—10 9
H—J 10 8 4 3
D—A K 9 4
C—A 6

EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)
S—A Q J 8
H—A
D—10 7 5
C—10 9 5 4 3

SOUTH (Jacoby)
S—K 7 5 4 3 2
H—K Q 7 2
D—6
C—7 2

The bidding was very interesting:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 Diamond	Pass	1 Spade
2 Hearts	Double	Pass	Pass
2 Spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

The second rubber was won by 1670 points, which reduced the opponent's lead to 2290 points. Although the opponents won the following three rubbers, we ended the session by being 810 points up on the evening and in total only 4840 points behind.

It was highly gratifying to me to see a series of brilliant bids by my husband and a series of brilliant plays by the great master of the game and one of my first teachers, Sidney Lenz. Mr. Jacoby's game was also of a high standard and his sang froid and precise skill enabled him to extricate himself from difficult situations.

Auction or Contract Question Splits London

London, Dec. 14 (US)—Transatlantic echoes of New York's bridge "battle of the century" are threatening a British social upheaval that should prove disquieting to the four experts deciding the merits of two contract systems in an hotel room endurance contest.

According to the Sunday Express, British homes and clubs are split into two camps, but not over the respective virtues of the contract systems advanced by Culbertson and Lenz. The question at issue, says the Express, is contract versus auction. The newspaper estimates that London's bridge gambling bill is $50,000,000 annually.

MRS. ARTHUR ROTCH

Don't crowd—we will tell you all WE know about it. Vague rumors have reached us from time to time, but it has seemed like a mirage in a benighted world. Like a morose angel we have scared away such dreams of paradise, but today we learned that this Utopian kingdom exists and we offer it as a panacea for your depression ills.

Disguising yourselves as a world traveler, follow Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Wentworth of the quiet and historic old town of Milton when they set sail in January for the Mediterranean and this magical isle. The Wentworths may be found at this writing visiting Mrs. Wentworth's sister, Mrs. Henry C. Lee (the former Mrs. Tom Stevenson), at their home in Brookline. They have closed their house in Milton for the winter to join the snappy, happy, carefree crowd who inhabit the mythical island off the coast of Spain. And all for the modest stipend of one dollar and a quarter a week, probably marked down from two dollars owing to the Gulf Stream changing its course.

Off to the Magic Land

NOW DO NOT ASK US WHAT YOU GET FOR YOUR one twenty-five. Several items present themselves, such as tipping the peanut-vendor, or buying picture postal cards to send back to Milton or some other Godforsaken place, or maybe you take ukulele lessons to learn "Two minds without a single thought; two hearts that beat for fun." Life must be rummy on an island completely surrounded by water. Here's to a life of honest poverty.

IMAGINE A PLACE ON THIS earth where you don't occasionally have to eat the dry toast of the bilious or dodge a flying squadron of installment collectors. Life is just one bedtime story after another. We wish we could join the Drones Club with the Stafford Wentworths for the winter, don't you? And we DO hope these charming people will appreciate it and not complain of the gnats or anything. To find any place where we could live on $1.25 a week, we would allow a whole herd of mosquitos to graze on US.

College Rolls Increase

Philadelphia, Dec. 14.—Despite prevailing conditions, collegiate attendance this year more than maintains the previous highest enrollment record, says Raymond Walters, dean of Swarthmore College, in his annual review of collegiate matriculation.

Reports from 111 approved universities and colleges in all parts of the United States, says Dean Walters in the current issue of "School and Society," shows an increase of six-tenths of 1 per cent.

The total of 399,124 of full-time students, as of Nov. 1, is 3721 more than of the same date in 1930.

The grand total of 444 institutions, including part-time students and the summer session of 1931, is 926,611, a decrease of 5417, or one-half of 1 per cent, compared with the same total of 1930.

DINNER DANCE FOR MISS ELEANOR FABYAN

Ritz-Carlton Is Scene of Deb's Party

There is one debutante of whom very little has been heard or said this season but upon whom the spotlight is now thrown—Miss Eleanor Fabyan, charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Fabyan of Commonwealth ave. Miss Fabyan gave up the first part of the year to a trip to the Orient with her aunt, Mrs. F. Louis Slade of New York, and has now returned to take part in the festivities due her as a bud, and to join her family during this Christmas season. This evening her parents are entertaining in her honor at a dinner dance to be held at the Ritz-Carlton to which nearly 200 of the young set have been invited.

In Usher Group

Heading the group of ushers will be her brother, Marshall Fabyan, Jr., assisted by three Baltimoreans who are house guests at the Fabyans this week, Harrison and Johnson Garrett and Samuel S. Johnston, as well as one other local man, and Miss Eleanor's cousin, George F. F. Lombard. Included in this corps are Robert McK. Ayer, Charles W. Bailey, Archibald M. Brown, Jr., Robert Breckenridge, David C. Crockett, Archibald Cox, Thomas W. Clark, D. Lindsay Dexter, Palmer H. Futcher, John W. Goodrich, Oscar Holder, Nelson W. Jay, Edward Little, Alexander Lincoln, Jr., William A. Lincoln, Charles P. Lewis, Ferguson Locke, Jr., A. Eliot Ritchie, Jr., Richard Stackpole, John P. Shurcliff, Avery Sawyer, J. Lindsay Ware, Francis C. Welch, and Nathaniel T. Winthrop.

Sister debs attending the affair include the Misses Katherine Balch, Jane Bancroft, Mary Jane Bigelow, Leslie Blake, Serita Bartlett, Peggy Bradley, Sylvia Cleveland, Betty Cram, Linda Collens, Dorothea Dean, Beatrice De Menocal, Lydia Evans, Alice Ellsworth, Dorothy Forbes, Barbara Greenough, Jean Hall, Hope Hubbard, Helen Homans, Eleanor Jones, Katherine Johnson, Emily Lincoln, Mary Loring, Jane Locke, Isabella Lee, Junia Mason, Babette Morison, Harriet Moseley, Elizabeth McGinley, Emily Perkins, Elsie Perkins, Madelyn Phillips, Jean Read, Polly Richardson, Charlotte Rantoul, Elizabeth Shurcliff, Ellen Stone, Dorothy Stone, Margot Stanwood, Lucille Swift, Ada Trafford, Katherine Thayer, Louisa Vaughan, Jane Williams and Frances Winlocke.

Feted in South

Among the post-debs will be Miss Fabyan's sister, Miss Isabella Frances Fabyan, and their cousin, Miss Rosamond Lombard, as well as Miss Abby Beveridge, Miss Barbara Bremer and Miss Sarah Palfrey.

Besides her trip to Japan, Miss Fabyan has been in Baltimore for a week or so, where her many relatives, principally her grandmother, Mrs. William McKormack, entertained for her, formally presenting her at the Bachelors' Cotillion last week. The debutante is a Winsor School graduate and a provisional member of the Junior League, also having been elected to membership in the Vincent Club.

Miss Tolman's Debut Dec. 30

A tea dance is to be given by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Tolman, Jr., Dec. 30 at their Salem home, to present their daughter, Miss Jessie C. Tolman. Another daughter, Miss Leslie Sears Tolman, will be head pourer.

Among the guests from other cities will be the Misses Polly and Frances Thomas, daughters of Mr. Norman Thomas, who will come from New York to visit the Tolmans.

Miss Polly Thomas, a student at Vassar, and her sister were schoolmates of Miss Jessie Tolman at Greenwich, Ct. Miss Tolman is a student at the Museum School of Fine Arts.

Americans in Social Limelight

By EVE MARVEL
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, Dec. 14.—It looked as though the circus had come to Paris the other evening when two elephants lumbered up and down the Champs Elysees.

They were actually attracting blase Parisians to the opening of Baron Napoleon Gourgaud's film, "The Real Face of Africa." Baron Gourgaud is the grandson of the great Napoleonic general and his wife is the former Eva Gebhard of New York.

The opening was a benefit performance. Among the many Americans present were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. Helen Harjes, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Howell, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Mackay.

Mrs. Mackay wore black tulle; Mrs. Harjes' black evening gown was set off by a red velvet jacket. A light blue moire gown with a light blue velvet coat and a cap of silver lace with a blue paradise feather was the costume chosen by Baroness Gourgaud. A necklace of marine beads was the completing touch.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary Scott Ferguson Biefkohl, of Roanoke, Va., to Henry L. Taylor of Chicago was celebrated quietly. Only the customary witnesses were present. The bride wore a green silk afternoon gown.

Miss Claire Apisdorf, niece of Hattie Carnegie, was wearing a crepe romain evening gown from Worth in a lovely shade of coral. It had a detachable scarf and a smart criss-cross belt in back.

Miss Eliot Rodgers, formerly Countess Jumilhac, chose a very high-waisted, simple gown, second empire in line.

Mrs. Ralph Beaver Strassburger was found taking luncheon at Ciro's. She wore a black broadcloth dress with one of the new fur-trimmed scarves. Recently returned from America, Comtesse de Limur, the former Miss Ethel May Crocker, was also present.

Mrs. Walter Borden of Chicago wore one of the smart new sports coats of green tweed with a long close-fitting collar of seal. It had a skirt wrapping entirely about the body and fastened with two clasps in front. The line was straight, though slightly belted.

Naval Promotions Sent In by Hoover

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP).—President Hoover sent to the Senate today the nominations of a number of naval officers to be promoted, among them Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin, of Ohio, as judge advocate general.

Capt. Edgar B. Larimer, of Missouri, was named as chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, with the rank of rear admiral, while a similar rank was given Capt. Samuel M. Robinson, of Texas, as chief of the Bureau of Engineering.

War Memorial Probe Sought

Pittsfield, Dec. 14 (AP)—Immediate investigation of the competition through which a design was selected for a Massachusetts war memorial was asked of Gov. Ely today by Gen. Charles B. Wheeler, chairman of the commission which made the selection. Gen. Wheeler's request follows a similar one from the Boston Society of Architects.

In a telegram Gen. Wheeler said:

"I ask you on behalf of myself and all other members of the commission a full and immediate investigation. We desire that all possible light be thrown on everything the commission did in the selection of five designs from which the final choice was made."

The winning design was that of G. Adolph Johnson of Worcester. In the letter to the architects it was contended that one or more of the five designs tentatively chosen were substituted by architects from outside the state, contrary to terms of the competition.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

The humor of our times—and oh, me! how things have changed since the dear, dead days of some of our humorous weeklies—could not be more truly presented than it is in "The Stag at Eve," a picture-book issued by Farrar & Rinehart.

I note that the volume is practically dedicated to Walter Schmidt, as well it might be, since his clever mind conveyed a great many of the ideas utilized by the various artists. Eighty-nine pictures have been gathered together by such draughtsmen as Rea, Steig, Valjean, Soglow, Klein, Price, Shermund and others too numerous to name, and unless you are a prude, and have moved along no further than the Eighteen-eighties, when the Ladies' Home Journal was in its early booming, you will not be shocked by the type of drawing here placed before you. For this book is a composite of our strange but invigorating social order; it is an interpretation of our times as authentic as it is hilarious; and not to keep pace with the rollicking present, which paradoxically enough, is always just one step ahead of the best of us, is to label oneself a dullard, if not an absolute goosie.

Into Oblivion

The old "He and She" joke has gone into oblivion, and is as demode as the word "dude"; and in its place has stepped the single-line caption which tells more, very often, than a full-length novel.

Take, for example, the picture by Garrett Price, of a timid soul sitting alone at a table for four in a Pullman diner. A battalion of colored waiters is clustered around him, looking fiercely in his direction. Frightened, the little fellow is saying: "Er—ah—toast and coffee, may I?" And the scorn on the black faces about him could not be better expressed.

But it is foolish to tell of this kind of humor. It must be seen to be appreciated. There are innumerable samples too delicate to be translated into mere words. But they are in keeping with the frank spirit of the age. The late Queen Victoria would have been seized with a stroke if her coy eyes had looked upon some of the pictures here presented—there is no doubt of that. But, then, who would have wished to be Queen Victoria?

Interest in Poetry

Personally, I can only say that I have laughed myself sick over this impudent collection. Don't miss it; our income tax installment being due, you will forget even the burden it entails; and you will likewise forget any other troubles you may have.

It is amazing how much interest there is in poetry these days. Down at Roosevelt House, the Poetry Society meets every month, and someone who can really read—last month it was no less a personage than Margaret Anglin—goes over the manuscripts, and there are little gasps of delight and pleasure from the audience.

Up at Columbia, Joseph Auslander conducts an English poetry class; and once in a while Gene Tunney attends. Mr. Auslander's students have tripled in number since he took charge of the course, and his students have the advantage of his personal criticism of their work, if, as often happens, they are ambitious to become verse-writers. His mellow mind is an inspiration to the young men and women from all over the country who come to him for advice, and now and then he provides a poet, as a thrilling surprise, who reads from his own work and talks informally of literature in general.

At the College of the City of New York, Morris Abel Beer, some of whose lyrics have appeared from time to time on this page, is conducting a Verse Writing and Contemporary Poetry class on Thursday evenings, from 7:25 to 9 o'clock. Mr. Beer lets it be known that this course deals with the tools and technique of verse-writing for the newspapers and magazines, and includes practical exercises in the use of various verse forms. It is intended primarily for writers, and incidentally, for all students of contemporary poetry. The aim of the course is to supply the writer with a knowledge of the most approved current practice to guide him in his work and to deepen the reader's appreciation of poetry by making him familiar with the best work of contemporary American and English poets.

Vinal's Poems

Down in Atlanta, Ga., there is a definite poetry movement; and in Winter Park, Fla., Jessie B. Rittenhouse gives lectures at this season which are enthusiastically attended. Percy MacKaye has spoken there and so has Clifton Scollard.

But there is scarcely a colony of any size in these United States which is not stimulated by just such talks.

Harold Vinal has done much in Boston to increase the interest in poetry; and a new volume from his graceful pen is before me. It is called "Hymn to Chaos," and the Stephen Daye Press in Brattleboro, Vt., has made a lovely thing of it.

If the volume contained nothing but the swinging "Ballad," which is a story of two brothers told with a rare economy of words, it would be worth while. But there are many brief songs, like "The Stranger" and "Pagan," which reveal an understanding of human beings, and which will serve to give Mr. Vinal his rightful place among American poets. Since 1922, when his first volume, "White April," appeared, I have been watching the sure progress of his art; and now, it seems to me, he has definitely arrived.

Other Men's Ideas

From "Gifts of Life," by Emil Ludwig (Little, Brown):

"What I can learn from the man's physique is as important as his mental and emotional life. If one would know friend or foe, the questions of whether he loves sport, sleeps in the cold, has much to do with women, are as weighty as those of his philosophy, and more so than that of his rank or pay.

"As well might one paint a man's eye and omit his mouth as attempt to explain his psychology and omit an exact physical description.

"Love, too, plays a part, but seldom the most important part, and least of all with writers.

"Human motives are sexual, and ambitions, too, but they are always mixed. The sporting instinct is in itself as important as both the others, for it leads to all works of art and many great deeds. . . . I shall never cure myself of judging men as well as women by their beauty, and don't really want to."

Dance Jan. 13 for Ruth Reed

A dance at the Chilton Club is to be given January 13, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mason of 25 Exeter st., for Miss Ruth Reed of New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lansing P. Reed.

Miss Reed is a granddaughter of the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence.

Mrs. Reed, a sister of Mrs. Charles L. Slattery of 175 Beacon st., was Miss Ruth Lawrence before her marriage. She is also a sister of the Rev. Frederic C. Lawrence of Cambridge.

Miss Reed was presented at a party at the Reeds' summer home in Cold Spring Harbor, L. I. The ushers' dinner at the coming party will also be given at the Chilton.

LEAGUE CANNOT PREVENT WAR —GROENER

Berlin, Dec. 14 (INS)—Vigorous denial that Adolf Hitler's Nazi ceding disarmament, as France cial "troops" would be of any value to Germany in case of war was made today by Gen. William Groener, minister of war and of the interior.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, outlining what Germany's stand will be at the coming general disarmament conference, Gen. Groener declared:

Disarmament must bring about security instead of security preceding disarmament as France demands.

A League of Nations army would deliver small and disarmed states into the clutches of heavily armed state with imperialistic policies.

Failure of the league to cope with the Manchurian crisis shows the futility of executive action by a "super state" founded upon the supposition that its component members must surender part of their national sovereignty.

There can be no security in Europe as long as Germany is exposed to the overpowering offensive armaments of her neighbors.

"The world's crying need," said General Groener, "is security by disarmament, not security and then disarmament."

Upon that contention, he added, Germany will base her stand at the disarmament parley where France, it has been stated repeatedly by members of the Paris government, will insist that security must precede any reduction in France's military establishment.

THREATS BARED IN LEVINE CASE

Augusta, Me., Dec. 14—A new mystery confronted investigators into the murder of Abraham Levine, young Waterville farmer, today in the claim of Mrs. Mildred Hersey, 30-year-old, blonde housewife, that she has twice been threatened with death in connection with the case.

This new feature of the case was taken up today by Atty.-Gen. Clement F. Robinson, who has been questioning the three accused persons in the murder who are now lodged in county jail here.

These three are Merton Levine, 22, elder brother of the murder victim; Mrs. Eleanor Johnson, 40-year-old colored housekeeper for the two brothers, and Samuel Morrison of Bath, who says he bought the revolver with which Mrs. Johnson declares Merton committed the murder.

Mrs. Hersey, wife of Austin Hersey of Weeks Mills, former Levine cattle foreman, told authorities the threats made against her came after she hadattempted to obtain the housekeeper's position formerly held by Mrs. Johnson.

SOCIETY BRIDE FLEES ALONE

Fairhaven, Dec. 14—Seeking seclusion after separating from her husband a few days following their fashionable wedding here, Mrs. George Gibbs, the former Mary Bryden, beautiful Fairhaven society girl, is today hiding in New York.

Confirmation of rumors that the couple had parted after a rift in their romance and that the bride had returned to Fairhaven instead of being with her husband at Texas army post, as friends believed, came today from her mother, Mrs. Bessy Burbank Bryden of Fort st.

The mother admitted that her daughter was staying with friends in New York. She refused further information, saying that the young bride wished to be alone.

The couple were married on Oct. 17 at the Rogers Memorial Church in Fairhaven and departed almost immediately for San Antonio, Tex., where Lieut. Gibbs is stationed at an army post. When the ship reached Galveston, however, the lieutenant disembarked alone.

The affair was very mysterious but it was finally learned that the couple had quarrelled at the outset of the honeymoon and the trouble was climaxed with the bride's departure. She continued on to Mexico with friends she had met aboard the boat, it was learned.

Lieut. Gibbs is the son of Maj. George T. Gibbs.

Church "Poor Box" Robber Gets 3 Months

Charged with "larceny of 75 cents, the property of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, William Cardinal O'Connell," Harry Brown of Union Park st., South End, was sentenced today in South Boston court to three months in the House of Correctin.

Specifically, Brown was charged with the larceny of the 75 cents from a poor box in S. Peter and Paul Church, South Boston.

Yale Riot Is Started Over 'Wooden Indian'

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 14 (INS)—"Pardon me—can you tell me where I might find a wooden Indian." This harmless question started a small-sized riot which left two men under arrest today, a search for five others in progress and a Yale initiation stunt in collapse.

The trouble started when George Porter, a student, asked a girl directions to the nearest wooden Indian. The girl fainted. Porter was arrested, the fun began.

Railroad Employes Threaten to Strike

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—Fred H. Fljozdal, president of the brotherhood of railway maintenance of way employes, said that about 80 per cent of ballots received thus far from brotherhood members on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad favored a strike in protest of the 15 per cent cut in wages recently announced by the company.

"A strike of major caliber threatens unless the matter is submitted to arbitration," he said.

London Expects Less Christmas Shopping

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—It was announced today the treasury has agreed to maintain the fiduciary issue (that part of the note issue not covered by gold) at £275,000,000 until Jan. 31.

This means the authorities do not anticipate a large increase in demand for notes during the Christmas shopping period.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment, and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Charles Pulsifer Dies in Laconia

Laconia, N. H., Dec. 14 (AP)—Charles Pulsifer, 82, president of the Lakeport National Bank, member of Laconia's first city council and mayor for two terms in [illegible] and 1898, died today.

Pulsifer suffered a fall as he was leaving the bank December 2 and his health had declined rapidly since that time. His wife died 30 years ago and he had no chilren. He was a graduate of Brown.

Honolulu Trouble Area Under Control

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Navy Department was informed today by Rear Admiral Stirling, commandant of the naval district at Pearl Harbor, there had been no rioting in Honolulu and recent disturbances were under control.

Stirling reported on the beating of one of five men involved in charges of attacking a naval officer's wife. He said feeling between a lawless element and service men had directed suspicion to naval men.

Submarine's Signal Halts Rescue Plans

San Francisco, Dec. 14 (UP)—Reported missing between here and San Diego, the U. S. Submarine Argonaut was contacted by radio. Everything is "Okeh," messages to naval headquarters said last night.

The submarine was being directed in maneuvers by radio. After a dive there was silence. Naval authorities at San Diego thought the undersea boat had submerged and failed to come up. Rescue forces were being marshaled when radio contact was made hours later.

Oil Industry Asks Tariff Protection

Washington, Dec. 14 (INS)—Declaring it is utterly impossible for American petroleum producers to compete with cheap foreign oil now being admitted duty free, the Independent Petroleum Association today made a formal request to Congress for relief of the oil industry.

A letter sent to every member of Congress urges legislation "which will make possible the employment of 2,000,000 workers and hasten return of prosperity."

"You needn't tell me —I know Camel is the fresh cigarette!"

Here's why they're FRESH!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

THERE is of course a sound reason why the Camel Humidor Pack can deliver to Camel smokers a cigarette that is genuinely fresh.

Camels are made fresh to start with, fresh with natural moisture—blended of the choicest, delicately mild, full-mellow, sun-ripened tobaccos that money can buy.

The full natural goodness of these fine tobaccos is safeguarded at every step in their handling—they are never parched or toasted—the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we can say with every assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

The delights of a genuinely fresh cigarette are so rare and desirable that Camel popularity continues to mount daily to new highs.

Test these delights for yourself—see what true freshness means in cool, slow-burning, delicate mildness—switch to Camels for just one day, then leave them—if you can.

PRATTLE AND TATTLE!

The shortest term divorce period—and the easiest in the world—will go into effect the first of the year in Chihuahua...It was framed by Milton Golden, first state legislator from Hollywood...Under its provisions your divorce will be granted in from one to two days, and you needn't even establish residence there—just stick around in your favorite speak here and wait for a wire from your lawyer...And now Talbot Cummings will find himself dropped from the 1932 Social Register because he married Claudia Morgan, a stage person . . . But Graveraet Kaufman, who also nuptialized with a gal from the footlights, Mae Daw, ex-Ziegfeldear, stays in, although friends insist the youngsters aren't as friendly as they used to be...The Horace Liveright-Elise Porter (Schildkraut) elopement Tuesday (predicted here last Friday) was planned to be a great secret, only 60 people being notified to attend...The ex-Mrs. Vincent Youmans is working quietly in one of the city's leading department stores...

Johnny Gallaudet, who four times was reported ready to elope with Helen Menken, is now squiring Connie McKenzie . . . The pioneer women's garment manufacturer will close his doors for good Feb. 1st . . . The Republican Club and the Democratic Club have been next door neighbors at 158th and Prospect avenue for years without a single squabble, the sissies . . . To help things along, the National City Bank as soon as it took over the Bank of America promptly fired 18 men out of the 41st and Broadway branch . . . Well, right on top of my plea for a good book carrying yarns about newspapermen's experiences, told by themselves, darn it if Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith haven't published one tagged "Behind the Headlines," edited by Vernon McKenzie.

Those Jay Goulds—you remember, she was Lorraine Manville, of the flock of Manville millions—have different cars for different times of the day, using a brown Rolls Royce for dinner driving and a Hispano Suiza for Sundays only...This should stir you, no end...Incidentally, or otherwise, Bill Austin's wife, the pretty Irene Delroy, won't be listed in Philly's Social Register...Have you seen that New Year card imported from Paree?—You flap over the ends so as to leave the center exposed for about an inch down the width of the card—and then, Oh, Hevinks!...That frantic phone call to three local papyri, insisting a murder had just been committed at a certain speak, came from a well-known scribbler who had gotten together with some Bronx Home News alumni at the speak, only to find that all were broke...He figured the reporters sent in answer to his call would have enough money to pay the check.

Rudy Vallee and Fay Webb are drifting . . . Funny Thing about Joan ("Buddy") Blondell . . . When she was in Manhattan doing bits in the theater she once complained to us that what was holding her back from real success was lack of sex appeal . . . Hey, Hey! Have you seen her in some of her recent flickers? . . . And one early morning in Barney Gallant's, Linda Watkins, with an offer from Fox in her hand, was preparing to snub it because George M. Cohan had promised her a part in his next play (which never went into rehearsal) . . . And now Linda has her picture in every movie mag . . .

"The Golden Age of Crime," a fascinating tome about racketeers and murderers by Arthur B. Reeves (and some very gruesome pictures, ugh!) . . . The energy of Herman Gertner, creator of Danish pastry, who at the age of 53 took up the study of 'cello, and now, two years later, actually plays "Sweet Adeline" in all keys . . . A hilarious farce at the Bijou, "Springtime for Henry," by Benn Levy.

Girl-About-Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

A BIT OF ARMENIA

Passing the Yepred Oriental Store, Broadway and Harrison ave., we were attracted by something in the window which looked like balloon-bubbly chunks of some doughy substance which seemed nearly a yard long . . . A woman's curiosity knows no limits, so we went inside the store and there met the owner, Mrs. Alice Mootafing, who came to America 20 years ago from Armenia . . . She has gorgeous big black eyes—"talking" eyes . . . So we felt a bit at ease about the questions we intended to ask her . . . She told us a lot of things . . . That storekeeping in Boston isn't the easy-going job it is back in Harpoot, her home town . . . There is no competition there! . . . If your store sells soap, chances are there isn't another store for miles where soap is also for sale . . . If you operate the corner grocery it's THE corner grocery, with no rival on the opposite corner.

We noticed some odd little dried up fishes, like minnows . . . Rare dainties, to be eaten (cooked or raw) with meal. It has taken Mrs. Mootafing 10 years to get this first shipment to this country . . . They're called "kadoots" . . . The funny-looking chunks we saw in the window are "hatz" . . . Bread which keeps for six months, never gets stale and which is baked in the old country in huge quantities twice a year . . . Mrs. Mootafing and another Armenian girl may be seen every morning at 11, baking "hatz" for the customers, but in Harpoot it is much different . . . Twice a year, each family employs about nine women to work night and day for two days to make the family supply of "hatz" . . . About four huge barrelfuls . . . It's made in a "tunir" (a large, sunken red sandstone barrel-oven) and after they "open up the dough" by pulling it out to paper thinness it is placed vertically on the inside of the huge, hot "tunir" . . . When the "hatz" is baked and nearly ready to fall off into the fire, one woman, her arms and hands covered with a non-burning salve, reaches into the "tunir" and takes the two or three yards wide "hatz" out . . . It is then [illegible] on a covered floor, for drying and when dry it is stacked to the ceiling in a special room of the house, which is used only for storing the season's supply of "hatz."

ONE DOWN!

One day last winter two pals having long promised each other a "licking on the links," started out for an afternoon of serious golfing. The place was Cuba, and the two pals were Harry Richman and Paul Ash. Paul had one caddie and Harry two . . . All the way out to the first tee Paul kept wondering why on earth Harry should have twice as many caddies.

However, they teed off and played their first hole after which Harry's extra caddie produced an enormous thermos bottle and refreshments were in order! . . . This was repeated after every hole, with Harry keeping his extra caddie plenty busy . . . Finally when the ninth hole had been played, Harry's two boys gently lifted the handsome "It" Man up on their youthful shoulders and bore him safely to the clubhouse . . . At last Paul had discovered just why on earth Harry had to have twice as many caddies!

BASSINET DITTIES IN ORDER:

The Neil (Mary Sheeley) Batchelors, of Winthrop, are practising "Rock-A-Bye-Baby" for an early crib recital . . . And the Thomas F. Dolan, Jrs., of Newton, are looking for their third kind gift from old "Doc" Stork . . . And Henry C. McKenna, Chief Probation Officer of Suffolk County, and his Missus should be singing out "any minute now" . . .

SPILLING THE BOSTON BEANS

The name of Charlie F. Adams, president of the Bruins, hasn't yet appeared in the milk war, but Charlie's nevertheless a man worth watching in the curernt Milky Fray, as years ago he waged a similar battle single-handed, and succeeded in reducing the price of the bovine beverage . . . On the list from which the Public Works Department will select 500 men to cut brush are 8406 names . . . Morgan T. Ryan, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, is booked to speak every night from now till mid-February on traffic matters . . . After that, if there's anything left of him, he'll take a vacation . . . Neil Kirby, of the Boston and Springfeild Despatch Company, is a bachelor with a heart-yearn for blondes . . . Yet the sly fellow delights in telling the girls about "the wife and kiddies at home" . . . And he's that good at it that many of the pretty ones actually believe him . . . Ethel Edmonds, Boylston Street beauty-maker, made her first trip to New York via the air last Saturday, and was able to keep airsickness under control only by smoking continuously . . .

ANOTHER PORTION

Ex-Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien will be grateful to Santa Claus if that worthy brings him a pair of spats for Christmas . . . And that's on the level! . . . Cambridge's Bobbe Stack is fast becoming a Dreamer-Girl since she attended the Mayfair last Wednesday with handsome Charley Chesney, the "Student Prince" gallant . . . Charlie's heel-clicking and elegant gallantries were what got her! . . . Lenore Murphy, the Seaglades cigarette girl with the stunning gray streak in her hair, used to be one of that supper room's best customers, and evidently decided that the only way she could spend more time in the room would be to work in it . . . Dr. Charles Mackey of the school committee called to doctor a sick actor at 4 a. m., though the actor hadn't expected the genial doctor to arrive till daylight . . . Brux Fletcher, Newport author, writes as follows of his artist home-sharer, Casey Roberts: "Mrs. Astor, Mrs. Robert Huntington, a couple of presidential suites, Otto Kahn and other things from show shops to Tiffany boxes, flaunt his excellent work" . . . Louisa Du Pont of the Bettah Clawss, who has been visiting Libby Holman of "Three's a Crowd" in Buffalo, is like unto Garbo with her sports-clothes complex . . . Jean Malin's wife collects jade and quartz lamp stands . . . But didn't visit Boston to add to her collection! . . . Paul Ash always sprinkles salt and pepper on his bread-and-butter before he can eat it . . . And a raw meat sandwich is his favorite morsel . . . Horrors! . . . Kohana De Lima, after playing Lady Macbeth at the age of twelve, wanted to become an emotional actress, but became the feminine half of the famous dancing De Limas instead . . . In his early violining years Jacques Renard used to become terribly annoyed when neighborhood kids threw pebbles in through his window, hitting the mirror in front of which Jacques always stood while practicing . . . In those days a single mirror could reflect all of Jacques . . . Within the past week agents have been dickering with Leo Reisman to place him in the New York Roxy and Brooklyn-Fox theatres as musical director, and also to sign him up to open July 1 across the ocean's span at Monte Carlo . . .

BOSTON BILL RICH IN FUN AND ART

Huston Star in "House Divided"

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Laugh, and that part of the world that can be seated in the RKO Boston, will laugh with you, this week. For there's good fun in the stage bill, along with arty matter, and general all-around entertainment. The vaudeville is excellent, and on screen is "A House Divided," having two good features, a story entirely out of the recent Hollywood run, and Walter Huston.

Walter Huston

Huston's characterization of the old fisherman practically carries the film along, but this actor's work is so sterling that he merits attention always. The plot has meat to it; it narrates the fortunes of the fisherman advertising for a wife, and of his son, played by Kent Douglass, and of the attractive Helen Chandler who shows up as a result of the matrimonial desire of the old man. Father and his boy get down to hard blows over the lassie, and there is plenty of excitement in addition to superb photography in the sea sequences.

Huston turns in a perfect portrayal, and Douglass does quite well. Miss Chandler is sufficiently strong for what she has to do.

The footlight program gets a good start with Prosper and Maret in clever acrobatics. The big feature is Dave Apollon's offering, "Antics of 1932." Apollon always comes forward with the class; his new revue is superb, rejoicing in stellar dancing and music. His Mexicans are fine instrumentalists; the girls, notably the capable Danzi Goodell, are lithe, speedy and talented. The audience, naturally, is applausively appreciative.

Gerald Griffin also captures the applause with his tenor voice; he sings "Star Dust," "River Stay Away From My Door," and encores. Exceedingly merry are Harrison and Elmo.

Ramon Novarro

Ramon Navarro has signed a long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under terms of which he will have an opportunity to direct pictures as well as to appear before the camera.

LOOK WHAT SANTA IS BRINGING TO HUB

Doris Patston lends her charms to "Smiling Faces" which opens Christmas night at the Shubert.

Rachel Hartzell graces the cast of "Cloudy with Showers," at the Hollis on Christmas night.

Josephine Huston comes to the Wilbur stage Christmas night in "Three Little Girls."

Gowns Feature of 'Good Sport'

"Good Sport," on screen at the Fenway and the Modern, is a fairly diverting comedy, boasting a rare array of Hollywood sirens, gowned in manner to hold the attention of women fans. The story has Linda Watkins happily wedded to Allan Dinehart. The wife is to make a mild sort of whoopee while husband goes abroad; and in the course of her nights out, she runs across jazzy folk galore, and a gentleman of leisure, John Boles. His wooing badly tangles the lady's affairs, and husband thinks her what she isn't; but it washes out O. K. before the finish, and all ends happy.

In the companion picture, "Compromised," Rose Hobart does very finely in a story of a Cinderella girl. Ben Lyon is hero; good work is done by Emma Dunn, Virginia Sale and Juliette Compton.

'Soul of Slums' on Park Bill

"Soul of the Slums," now featured at the Park Theater tells of the reformation of a gangster, and the aid given him by a sweetheart, who has also become of the opinion that the straight road, though narrow, is the best to travel. The leading roles are played by William Collier, Jr., who turns in a good performance, and Blanche Mehaffey.

The cast includes James Bradley, Jr., Murray Smith, Mathew Betz, Walter Long, Paul Weigel and Max Asher.

Director Frank Straver has succeeded in turning out a picture that wins sympathy without becoming maudlin.

Robert Montgomery

Robert Montgomery fills a varied number of positions in his role as hero of "Courage," in which he is starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He is seen as a sailor, hotel clerk, cowboy, window-washer, tobacco clerk and finally, as a playwright.

"Old and New" at Fine Arts Rich Treat for Film Fans

By HARRIS MORGAN

"Old and New," on the Fine Arts program this week, packs the camera punch. The Russian wizard, Serge Eisenstein, achieves a lens eloquence few directors can equal; his film has amazing technique, high speed, pathos, humor. He makes "Old and New" an epic of the Slav peasantry, and a masterpiece of the silent cinema.

It has been a long time since anything so genuinely and wholly motion picture has been seen. Mind you, the emphasis is on the "motion." For Eisenstein believes in action, in saying his "say" with the camera, inciting the imagination through the eye alone. And he does the magic thing in this picture—a drab idea, to the Hollywood way of thinking, this saga of the soil. But Eisenstein builds it up until the screen fairly sings its story. In his characteristic manner he paces swiftly, and rapidly shoots his cut-ins, until one feels carried along on a current, willy-nilly, but pleasing, intrigued, entertained.

This may or may not be Soviet propaganda yet it is probable that Eisenstein, the artist, dealt with his problem among his people in much the same fashion as any American director would tackle the same job over here, striving to use the materials in hand for the best effect. He has certainly succeeded. He makes his narrative interesting by the sheer power of his panoramas.

For the lover of cinematic excellence, "Old and New" is a rich treat. It is MOTION picture.

Marian Nixon Is Chosen by Frank Borzage for "After Tomorrow"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Louella O. Parsons

Los Angeles, Dec. [illegible]. The gold statuette [illegible] of the Motion Picture Academy stands in a prominent place in Frank Borzage's [illegible]. He was handed [illegible] for [illegible] direction of "Seventh Heaven." A girl [illegible] known as [illegible] Janet Gaynor [illegible] him [illegible].

Testing for "After Tomorrow," Mr. Borzage [illegible] for another girl with [illegible] was [illegible]. He found [illegible] Marian Nixon. [illegible] Miss Nixon [illegible] may be interested to hear [illegible] Fox director [illegible] quality [illegible] like the little Gaynor girl.

It [illegible] interesting to see what Marian Nixon does in "After Tomorrow." Donald Meek, who did so much to make the [illegible] on the stage, has [illegible] to play the same role on the stage. After three [illegible] as to the date of [illegible] the Fox company [illegible] asked for a [illegible] from [illegible] obligations.

That terrible villain, Jackie Searle, is reforming. Jackie is always the menace in every kid picture. He is the boy that you'd like to spank, and he says he is tired of always getting the worst end of things. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed him to play a good little boy in "Courage," Robert Montgomery's next picture. Speaking of M-G-M, I hear it whispered that little Irish colleen Maureen O'Sullivan, who has been free-lancing, will sign a contract there. That stage offer handed Jean Hersholt will have to wait. Jean has signed a new long term contract at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and very glad he is to remain in Hollywood.

WHO'S KEEPING MUM ABOUT THE FACTS AND FUTURE?

By GILBERT SELDES

"Do you," writes W. McM. Walters, [illegible] some one is holding out on us? [illegible] plex. I read two newspapers a day [illegible] zines. I don't know much about economics [illegible] else. I am beginning to realize [illegible] studied in colleges, but is something [illegible] money I'll earn and how much taxes [illegible] along reading what the politicians [illegible] say about what the politicians say. [illegible] big manufacturers. I ought to learn [illegible] And every once in a while a little [illegible] knew it and it's all news to me. [illegible] a [illegible] 'five-for-one' issue of stock [illegible] a little trick or something. And now [illegible] the depression when they weren't [illegible] ing off workers still were trying to pay [illegible] on five shares instead of one."

News From Abroad

That isn't all. It's years now [illegible] German reparations and many of [illegible] are here so eager to have the reparations [illegible] postponed. And now, between the French Laval, who says [illegible] who says yes, we learn that if the reparations are not paid the private debts will be paid, and vice versa. [illegible] the private loans no longer are in the [illegible] are in the hands of individual investors. [illegible] were issued through banks weren't [illegible]

Why Make It Secret?

I tell you I'm not an economist [illegible] would be better for us to have the debts [illegible] Germany will have to meet its reparations [illegible] have private debts paid, or neither, or both [illegible] choice ought to have been made public [illegible] year talk of reparations and the Allied debts [illegible] on a high moral plane—all about capacity to pay [illegible] who won the war. Now all that [illegible] the simple facts were fogged over [illegible]

Not Conspiracy

I don't know, Mr. Walters. The [illegible] is the idea of a conspiracy. It seems [illegible] human stupidity are so wide that we hardly need to add the imputation of deliberate wickedness. It seems perfectly [illegible] to me that the French should be conscious [illegible] the great European power; for forty years [illegible] idea of revenge, for four years they fought [illegible] imagined that the fruits of their victory [illegible] mouths; and then suddenly [illegible] as mighty as they were under the great [illegible] and the great Napoleon. It is an appalling stupidity [illegible] imagine that they can be permanently prosperous at the expense of all other nations; but good practical politics [illegible] get in five or ten swell years.

Business Gods

I feel the same way about [illegible] of adulation. The young [illegible] a childish dream and going into banking [illegible] of American youths did in the past three decades [illegible] to money and business as the grandest of the nation's [illegible] our men of business captains and kings [illegible] usually reserved for royalty and [illegible] them the sun set. Naturally [illegible] tend that things aren't so. [illegible] of themselves. When Mr. [illegible] lion dollars, they protested [illegible] Naturally Mr. Hoover asks that [illegible] with it might disturb business. [illegible]

Thanks to Radicals

The world has been better [illegible] before. We owe a great deal to [illegible] zations; we owe something to every agitator [illegible] gerate and declaim and lie, because they have forced [illegible] truth. We owe most to the excessive propaganda of the war, and a lot to a few people who do not want to destroy [illegible] want to destroy the pests which [illegible] off our [illegible]

A Few Questions

But I am not sure that we [illegible] the [illegible] was brought on the League of Nations [illegible] Japanese [illegible] business? Is Japan's acceptance of the League [illegible] lation a triumph for Japan? Did the British bankers [illegible] throw of the Labor government to save themselves? [illegible] who think they can escape high [illegible] in the upper [illegible] know, with any certainty, that the country can [illegible]

Why 1934?

Following such questions, another naturally [illegible] makes the year 1934 so sacred and so certain? Mr. Hoover [illegible] of that year for the end of the new taxes. Again [illegible] tion to expose a conspiracy. The year 1934 will [illegible] in the term of Mr. Hoover's presumable Democratic [illegible] and if Mr. Hoover were a cynical politician like Hanna [illegible] new taxation expiring by law at that time would be a mean [illegible] But Mr. Hoover is without irony.

A Long Look—Backward

For the first time he has [illegible] self. The 60-day system didn't work, and with [illegible] Mr. Hoover has taken two and a half years for his mark. The [illegible] in the back of his mind seems to be that in 30 months we [illegible] ourselves of debt and be restored to prosperity. Mr. Hoover [illegible] nomics what many people are in their private lives. He wants to go back to the days of his youth, to the time of carefree happiness. The psychoanalysts can name that fixation, can trace it to [illegible] Without their help most of us recognize it as running to mamma's apron and hiding when the big dog barks at us. And most of us know there are other methods of defeating big dogs.

"The Guardsman" Tops Bowdoin Sq. Program

The Bowdoin Square is presenting a fine show with seven selected vaudeville acts and two films. The pictures are "The Guardsman" and "The Bargain." Tonight a photograph of Clark Gable will be presented to each patron. The vaudeville has Jack McCluskey & Co., in a comedy festival, Kaye and Franklyn. Danny Cavanaugh, is master of ceremonies; Leach and La Quinlan Trio, gymnasts; Maley and Maley; Knowlton Duo, acrobats, and Grace Wallings, vocalist. Wednesday is cabaret night with extra acts.

Police Officials to See "Inspector Kennedy"

Commissioner of Police Eugene [illegible] Hultman, Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, Deputy Thomas F. Goode and other officials from police headquarters will attend the opening performance this evening of "Inspector Kennedy" at the Copley. The play, by Milton H. Cropper and Edna Sherry, portrays modern methods of crime detection with a [illegible] solving a baffling crime. The authors had the co-operation of Commr. Mulrooney of the New York police department in dealing the technicalities of criminal procedure. About 20 members of the Boston department will attend tonight's opening.

WIFE 'WALKED IN ON SKI GIRL,' SAYS CONNER

New York, Dec. 14.—Chiding his wife for taking advantage of his [illegible] sweetheart, the mother of his child, William F. Conner has written another of his letters from [illegible]

The letter, sent to Mrs. Inez Conner [illegible] of Malden, [illegible] for her and for [illegible] May Gledhill, the [illegible] Mrs. Conner's home with her [illegible] husband.

Mrs. Conner [illegible] the baby [illegible] before [illegible]

The letter to Mrs. Conner (who was living with Miss Gledhill until the latter was taken to Nassau County Hospital suffering from a nervous collapse) reads in part:

"My Dear Inez:

"What have you been telling to the newspapers? How you can take advantage of May while she is lying in the hospital at death's door and while I am here helpless is beyond my analytical ability to comprehend.

"I have been silent all these months and will remain so. You know I am here because I acted as I did to keep May and the baby from starving. I am wondering how you could come to May's house and talk and write the things you do for the newspapers. How much are you getting?

"Won't you please have May write to me? I have had no word from her. Please take good care of Sonny and May.

"Your loving husband,

"William."

There are dozens of styles and types, including plenty of thick, full-sized malacca handled ones for men. Most have 10 rib frames and sterling silver bands on which we'll engrave three block letters at no extra charge. The men's umbrellas are of imported Swiss Gloria Cloth. The women's umbrellas, also worth $5, are of rich silk, many with imported novelty handles. Regular $5 values at $3.65. Tuesday. 1st floor.

They're of heavy virgin wool, every single fiber. A fabric especially designed for winter play and sports wear. Red, tan, green or blue with harmonizing cluster chest stripes. Styled right, too - with full belts, double knees, talon zipper fronts, knitted sleeves and cuffs. Sizes 3 to 10. Regularly $7.50 now $4.95. Boys' Department. 4th floor.

50c Kenworth Junior Neckties at

3 for $1

Or 35c each if you want only one. But we predict you'll buy them by three's, and the value is so pronounced there'll be a great temptation to buy them by sixes and twelves. Schwartzenbach and Huber's renowned mogadores are included among the many desirable and attractive fabrics. Don't let the price deceive you. Ties of this quality are worth a good deal more. Or they wouldn't be "Kenworth"! 4th floor.

$2.50 and $3 Men's Slippers at

Any man would thank you for a pair. And when you can buy such excellent quality at this low price, you'd better check your gift list carefully. All with hand turned soles—ample variety in styles and colors. We wish we could tell you the name of the makers, but they wouldn't like it advertised that we are selling $2.50 and $3 values (even a few that were $3.50) at $1.95. 1st floor.

$5.85 Kenworth Suede Jackets at

No doubt those three lines are enough to sell all we have in stock. But we'll risk further description because we can have more here at noon tomorrow. This is one of our largest selling jackets at its regular price - knitted collar and cuffs - full chrome tanned - a distinct favorite of men who want a dash of style with their comfort, and honest value for every dollar they invest. Regular $5.85 value - tomorrow only at $4.45. 3rd floor.

$5 Mandelberg Raincoats at

Once upon a time there was a raincoat maker which commanded its designing staff to produce a raincoat that had style as well as utility - strength and sturdiness to withstand the abuse of the average wearer - and, above all, to remain waterproof throughout its long life of service. The maker was Mandleberg. The designer's triumph is usually $5. It's $3.45 tomorrow only. Give him something to wear. 3rd floor.

Women's Leather Sports Jackets

We're not referring to a former price because we've never carried them before. But we know this: That they're made of full chrome tanned leather, flannel lined, in black, blue, brown, red, green, London tan and wine - and exact duplicates of them are selling in other stores today for $7.50 and more. Our sportswear buyer found the maker long on jackets and short on cash - so they're $5.95 tomorrow only. 3rd floor.

JACKSONIAN DEMOCRATS ARE TO BE FOUND IN BOTH PARTIES

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

EDITOR [illegible] AMERICAN

[illegible] Professor Robert E. Rogers [illegible] he described [illegible] as a Jacksonian Democrat. This is absolutely incorrect, as Gillis is an enrolled Republican and Professor Rogers [illegible] that he was a Republican [illegible] for the United States Senate last November [illegible] about the defeat of [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] can be a candidate on a party primary [illegible] enrolled in that party.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

We [illegible] suggest that this misstatement [illegible] be speedily corrected, as the references to Jacksonian Democracy were [illegible] and snobbish and unwarranted in an overwhelmingly Democratic city. Trust you will print this correction. Signed, Governor's Councilor James H. Brennan.

The editor of the Evening American forwarded the above telegram to me [illegible] I [illegible] to be an [illegible] in a Democratic city [illegible] the Democrats [illegible] agree [illegible] my correspondent finds [illegible] sarcastic and [illegible]

A second [illegible] My correspondent [illegible] the Democratic party [illegible] connection with Mr. Gillis. [illegible] Mr. Gillis is not [illegible] party Democrat, for the reasons which I suggested in my column, reasons which he finds [illegible] and snobbish. Perhaps a [illegible] my correspondent [illegible]

Party Affiliation Not Important

Of course [illegible] Mr. Gillis [illegible] Jacksonian democrat with a capital D. If he is a Republican [illegible] good. I was not thinking of party affiliation [illegible] When one speaks of Jacksonian democracy [illegible] one means an idea [illegible] political philosophy which transcends party lines. The city of Philadelphia is habitually [illegible] Republican [illegible] is in essence just as democratic in the Jacksonian sense as are New York and Boston.

A Jacksonian democrat, to be precise, is a political thinker who believes that public officials are born, not trained. He believes that no reason exists for thinking that one man with a good education, with property, and with experience in managing affairs and men, is any better qualified for public service than another man with a meager education, little or no property, and no experience in affairs. The Jacksonian democrat also believes that government exists, not to be served at a sacrifice, but to furnish jobs, party payrolls and [illegible].

Let me quote from [illegible] American History [illegible] Century:

"It was one of the doctrines of Jacksonian democracy that office was a thing to be fought for at the polls and that to the victors belonged the spoils. . . . Before Jackson's time postmasters, clerks, customhouse officers, and the like, were allowed, as a rule, to remain in office as long as they behaved themselves properly and did their work well. But Jackson was hardly in office before a general proscription began. Age, length of service, satisfactory performance of duties, or financial dependence, were no protection." Men who had grown old in the government service were dismissed at a moment's notice and without recourse. It is estimated that within a year more than 2000 persons were deprived of their offices. Jackson could make these wholesale removals with a good conscience, for he believed that in most cases no special fitness was required for holding office. One man, he said, could perform the duties of an office about as well as another.

So one of the first fruits of Jacksonian democracy was the establishment of the spoils system.

I am an independent in politics [illegible] must not be forgotten that the Republicans established the civil service and that the Jacksonian democrats, particularly in the big cities, fought against it to the bitter end.

Jackson Himself a 'Barbarian'

Brooks Adams says in his "The Degradation of the Democratic Dogma" (Macmillan):

"When the Constitution had been adopted and the first administration organized, General Washington's personality had been so commanding that he had raised, as it were, the whole nation to his own level, by a sort of miracle of inherent strength; but after General Washington died, the democratic system of averages began its work, and the old inequality sank to a common level. By 1828 a level of degradation had been reached, and it was the level of Jackson. Therefore, the fall in intelligence and intellectual energy of the democratic community, in 25 years, had exactly corresponded to the interval which had separated Washington, intellectually, from Jackson."

"Jackson was, to use John Quincy Adams' own words when he was asked to attend at Harvard when the university made Jackson a Doctor of Laws, 'a barbarian, who could not write a sentence of grammar and hardly could spell his own name.' And more than this, Jackson embodied the principle of public plunder which Adams believed to be fatal to the hopes of prosperity as well as to those of his own generation. . . .

"Adams had labored all his life to bring the democratic principle of equality into such a relation with science and education that it would yield itself into becoming, or being formed into, an efficient instrument for collective administration. But this was striving after a contradiction in human nature. . . . An education of conservatism was contrary to the instinct of greed which dominated the democratic mind, and impelled it to insist on the pillage of the public by the private man."

Possibly my correspondent considers these extracts from notable historians as "snobbish and sarcastic." And yet they say, only more emphatically and in detail, what I said in my column.

Of course, there are men of the people, many of them, who have overcome their handicaps and become, at length, highly competent public officials. But for everyone of these who make out the best case for democracy, there are (as every intelligent observer recognizes) a hundred who are entirely incapable of public office, who should never have aspired to it, who make of politics a mockery and a sham. Most of these would call themselves, if asked, Jacksonian democrats. But they are to be found in both parties.

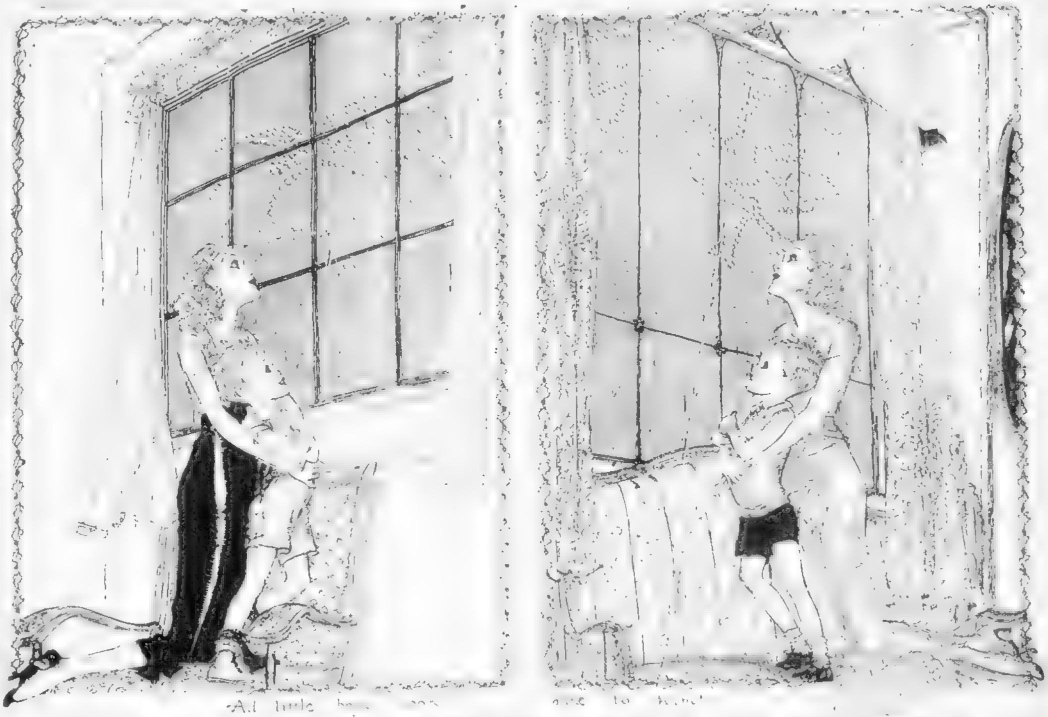
THE IMPARTIAL SAINT



All little boys look alike to him

All little boys look alike to him—and he looks the same to all of them. He is the patron Saint of Children—the Tiny Ones—and though he goes by many names, his looks, when he shows himself to a child, do not change. Call him Saint Nicholas, Santa Claus, Sante Claas, St. Niclaes, Kries Kringle, Pere Noel, some of which [illegible] and some of which are bestowed upon him in affection, what you will.

Father Christmas is the Angel of children. See how we grown-ups work so hard to help him "make good"! And why do [illegible] and [illegible] again on Christmas? Because Christmas [illegible] of the little people—the tiny ones who can be made [illegible] without laughing and with a solemn face—alone among humans.

Once the Day of St. Nicholas—before he had to assume [illegible] personality on Christmas and wear the robes of Pere Noel and the Christkindlein—had a day of his own—December the 6th [illegible] children—his own particular flock.

But after New Amsterdam became New York [illegible] took himself to Christmas Eve with [illegible] nationalities and Days. He wear the [illegible] children [illegible] to shelter in [illegible] red velvet coat! And the Christ Child from His place looks down and smiles at the kindly saint who has made himself Father Christmas on the Christ Child's Day.

CHRISTMAS OPPORTUNITIES FOR BOSTON GOODFELLOWS

CASE NO. 47

Please do not forget us this year. We are greatly in need of food and clothing. I have five children, three girls, one 11 years, [illegible] and two [illegible]. My husband hasn't worked for three years on account of illness.

We find it very hard to get food every day. We all need underwear and shoes very bad. We would appreciate it very much if you would send us a Christmas basket and some clothing. You can come and investigate this case if desired.

[illegible]

CASE NO. 48

Could you please help me? I have five children, ages from 4 to [illegible] years. My youngest just came home from the hospital. She was born [illegible] very cold now. My husband is not working steady and it is hard to get along.

I would appreciate it very much if you could send us a Christmas Basket.

Hoping you won't forget us.

[illegible]

CASE NO. [illegible]

I am a poor woman. [illegible] he left six years ago and I have three children. The oldest is a girl [illegible] years old [illegible] years old and the next little girl is 7 years old.

Will you please give us a basket this year. Things are so dull I know I will not have anything for my children this Christmas. I will be glad for anything you have. If I did not need it I would not ask for it, so I will be so glad if you send me one as I [illegible] sometime ago in the hospital.

[illegible]

CASE NO. 1[illegible]

Will you please send us a Christmas basket? We are six in the family and no father for [illegible] years. Two of us children are out of work and only one girl working, and her salary is very small. My mother is ill and we cannot afford to get a doctor and buy medicine for her. We are trying very hard to get what we should for the younger ones. I haven't had a new dress for over a year which I would like to have. It would be very kind of you if we would receive a Christmas Basket so to have a good Christmas.

We thank you very much and will appreciate it very much. We live one flight up.

This girl lives in Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 49.

CASE NO. 50

I am writing at last. And I just hated to. I thought I might be able to go through but it is impossible.

There are 12 children in our family. And I just buried our 13th baby. My husband has not done any work since August. I am a pretty sickly woman myself. I have just come home from the Boston City Hospital maternity ward.

Had a very serious operation, both [illegible] cut open also and sewed. And then the loss of my new baby. It was all for the best I now understand it. As with such a family of 12 like I have I couldn't care for my lost boy. Then my oldest son went to the hospital and he had an operation for his appendicitis. He is feeling pretty good but not so very strong as yet. I have lost so much. My health is very poor. I [illegible] a lot to make up as I had a blood transfusion and it will take a long time for me to pick up as to my age also.

With no one working, to please [illegible] our story and remember [illegible] I am not able to do any cooking but will be glad to assist the little girls in showing and telling them what to do. As like Thanksgiving it wasn't a lot but so thankful to be home with my family as I was on the danger list for a whole week.

Will you please see if you can send us a basket and some stockings to the boys, please. I hate to bother you. My story is true. I'll be glad if we come any of your dear friends. And I can assure you I will gladly be thankful and appreciate your loving kindness. I am not well but I can meet you just the same in my chair.

[illegible]

CASE NO. 51

I am writing you this letter to see if you can help us out this Christmas. I am doing this without my parents knowing it.

My father got out of work about seven months ago. We got put out of the house we were living in and a good neighbor loaned us a place to live in. It is an old shack [illegible] with no shingles and no plaster or anything to keep out the cold wind and rain but we are trying to get by until my father gets work.

Praying the Lord will see us through.

We have eight children in our family and mother and father are looking to Christmas hoping something will turn up for my father to do.

If you send my two brothers, age ten and seven years old, a coat to keep them warm and a basket of food when Christmas [illegible] days comes we would all be happy. I guess I would rather be dead if I don't get anything to eat.

[illegible] Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 1000, and ask for Case No. [illegible]

CASE NO. 52

I am a girl of 15 years of age and I am writing to you to ask you to help us by sending us a Christmas Basket.

We are very hard up and very seldom have a good meal. Almost every day we have soup and a piece of bread and a glass of water and sometimes just bread and water. We have a good meal on Sunday, that is beans and frankforts which we consider a good meal.

Our gas has been shut off for four months. Father has just come home from the hospital from being under an operation. We hope we will receive something.

We owe six months rent and are in the verge of being kicked out. We are almost without stockings and shoes to wear so please don't forget us and I am sure you will be thanked and God will reward you.

[illegible] mas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 1000, and ask for Case No. 52.

Newsie Given Thrill of His Life at Benefit Cabaret

[illegible] can [illegible] be expected to do [illegible].

Miss Wini Shaw [illegible] singer in the [illegible] created something of a minor sensation when she appeared at the Cocoanut Grove supper cabaret last night bringing as her guest a 10-year-old newsboy. The boy was Joseph Piepszak, whose home is on [illegible] South Boston.

Last night's cabaret, the first of its kind to be presented on a Sunday night in Boston, was in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American. Stars and performers from the various Boston theatres and [illegible] were guests of the Cocoanut Grove management.

HAD TO BE CONNED

As each performer arrived he or she was warmly greeted by the gathering. But when Miss Shaw entered accompanied by her [illegible] acquaintance dressed in marked contrast to those at the tables, they received an ovation. It was something new on the program.

"There is nothing particularly odd about it," said Miss Shaw later. "As I was leaving my hotel to go to the Grove I stopped to buy a paper from the boy. The thought came to me—here is one of the thousands for whom benefits are being arranged throughout the country. Why not let him enjoy the show—and the supper if he would go."

After considerable coaxing the boy accepted her invitation.

"For a while," admitted Wini, "I was afraid I was going to be refused."

It is difficult imagining anyone declining to escort the [illegible] Miss Shaw, but young gentlemen of 10 have pretty definite notions about [illegible] women. However [illegible] of his sex the boy finally accepted the invitation.

SPLENDID DINNER

"To tell the truth," went on Miss Shaw, "I was being just a little bit selfish when I asked him to go with me. You know there is more real joy in giving than in receiving. And seeing my little friend's face beam with happiness at the show and at the food that was placed before him gave me more than great delight."

When someone informed the [illegible] that Miss Shaw was one of the famous Ziegfeld company, he [illegible] to believe it. [illegible] knew how much he was enjoyed [illegible] other man at Cocoanut Grove.

He was not greatly concerned with the people who were around him. [illegible] food that was placed before him. Chicken [illegible] in favor of chicken, cranberry [illegible] cheese [illegible] ice cream.

LIKES ICE CREAM

The cabaret show interested somewhat with [illegible].

"Great show, isn't it?" Angelo the head waiter asked him.

"Oh, it's all right," admitted the boy, "but could I have some more ice cream?"

He got it.

When he had no more room for goodies he thanked his friend for the [illegible] evening.

"I think you're swell," he said. "I'm coming to the show to see you."

"I'll be looking for you," Miss Shaw replied.

The boy [illegible] others on the program were [illegible] good. [illegible] a particular favorite with [illegible] was Lina Basquette and the singing duo, Brady and [illegible].

[illegible] of the Student Prince company gave [illegible] excerpts from that operetta. Harry Richman, Mrs. Jack Pearl and Gladys [illegible] America's most beautiful girl were at a nearby table.

Of course the diminutive Mildred McMurray, the local girl about the same age as [illegible] Joseph, who thrilled everyone with her clever dancing, made a great hit with the boy.

[illegible] Hadley, [illegible] Rogers, [illegible] & Fields, Louis & Winthrop, [illegible] Gallagher, Joe Zippkin [illegible] Loew's Orpheum theatre helped to make the evening a memorable one for Miss Shaw and her little friend as well as the hundreds of others who were present.

Not wishing to keep her guest too late, Miss Shaw sent him home in the car of a friend before the show was over.

Today Joseph is probably cock of [illegible] neighborhood. [illegible] start a fight [illegible] in aid of the [illegible]. And from an [illegible] to be greater.

"Josephine Sabino will rank with Lily Pons, Marion Talley and others who very suddenly made people aware of their beautiful coloratura soprano voices," said Signor Gigli. "The fact that Josephine sang for four years at La Scala in Italy, where mediocre artists are not tolerated, is sufficient proof that she has an unusually beautiful voice."

"Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller sponsored many concerts for me," said the petite Josephine, "and when I was graduated from the Rockland High School she advised me to study with Madame Emilia Ippolito. Madame Ippolito arranged for an audition with the great Polacco, and that's how I was sent to Italy. RING LARDNER'S SON ENTERS HARVARD

Humorist's Son Serious About Studies, Will Do His Laughing Later

JAMES PHILLIPS LARDNER

Wigglesworth House, one of the newer dormitories [illegible] house plan, has a celebrity [illegible] second floor.

He's James Phillips Lardner [illegible] of the famous humorist, Ring Lardner, who used to be sports editor of the Boston Evening American.

And Jimmie has been [illegible] unseen since last September, a freshman at the college.

Like the sons of other [illegible] known men, he has kept the family fame pretty much to himself and it wasn't until papa rang him in on a broadcast that the [illegible] knew the Lardner tribe [illegible] scion at Harvard.

Papa Ring hoped that "Jimmie" wasn't listening to him when he went on the air the other night.

"Jimmie might say I was on trial," quoth Ring. "Then he would be banned from the stadium."

AGAINST SPEECH MAKING

All of which put the news [illegible] on the trail of the humorist's son and he was tracked to his suite in Wigglesworth.

Of course he was immediately asked:

"Do you intend to follow your father's footsteps?"

To which he replied:

"Now take it easy. I'm just a young man trying to get along, and I refuse to make a speech.

"When a man's a freshman he ought to be interested in his present troubles. Those are my studies. When my marks are good and I can plan on them staying that way I may be worrying about a career in journalism. In the meantime I'll wait on the studies."

Much quizzing revealed the that the marks are "pretty good" now, and that he hoped to try for [illegible] humorist's son."

[illegible]

SERIOUS STUFF FOR HIM

"And how about the Lampoon?" There's a good spot for a humorist.

"Not for this humorist's son. I'm in for serious business. Maybe I can get funny later, but [illegible] in the comic [illegible] tale of trophy.

Say, you don't mind, do you — but this interview business is a strain and besides I have to go [illegible]. Now [illegible] I will have to make that [illegible]

LOCKED IN CELL FOR SAFETY

Patrolman Raymond W. Gent in a cell in the Hull police station where the 350 cases out of 600 seized early today were put for safety. While police were removing the liquor from where it was cached in the home of Dr. Blake, daring hijackers stole 250 cases right under the noses of the coppers. Police were unloading on one side of the house while the hijackers worked on the other.

HARVARD MAN'S HOUSE USED AS CACHE

Summer home of Dr. John B. Blake on Green Hill, Nantasket, used as a liquor cache by rum-runners. Police swooped down and seized 600 cases. While taking it away, hijackers silently worked on the opposite side and stole 250 cases. Dr. Blake of Harvard Medical School has stated in lectures that whiskey never has done any ill person any good. (Staff photos.)

EMBERS OF LOVE ❖ By Hazel Livingston

Ken Hurt by Lily Lou's Actions

JEALOUSY MOUNTS

JUST THINKING

[illegible]

"You must be crazy," Ken said.

"Not just sensible." Lily Lou's mouth was firm. She spoke without excitement. Her voice was flat and a little tired.

"But Lily Lou, why at least can't we be friends? Don't we get along fine? Don't we have fun together? Things are just starting. The girls like you so much. I can get you in on no end of parties——"

[illegible] You don't understand," she said.

No, I'm damned if I do [illegible]

[illegible] aimlessly. It was a Thursday [illegible]

KEN HURT

Ken was hurt, terribly hurt, and Lily Lou was sorry. Hurting Ken had a queer effect on her. She [illegible] for what seemed like hours to Lily Lou.

"Hadn't we better turn back?" she asked finally.

For answer he drove the car to [illegible] him, kissed her again and again. "Lily Lou," he said in a half strangled voice, "you can't do this to me. I—I love you. More than anything in the world. Why, you—you are the world to me. You're what I think of, when I think of [illegible], and I don't know what I've done to spoil your love for [illegible]. You told me once that you loved me. What made you change? Tell me—

[illegible] mean it—[illegible] always [illegible] you—always—"

"But then——" He couldn't finish the sentence. He had her in his arms again [illegible] her [illegible] was weak [illegible] draw away. "Please, Ken—don't—oh, it's no use, Ken—"

What is Lily Lou's answer when Ken asks her to marry him? Told in tomorrow's installment.

Fashion Notes

[illegible] THE PONY is fashion's [illegible] as ponyskin returns to favor. A smart woman wears, with a black frock, an odd cape that buttons on the shoulder, a little one-sided cap and gloves with fur gauntlet all of snowy white glossy ponyskin.

A SPLENDID MATCH with a suit or coat trimmed with black Hudson seal is a pair of black suede gloves with enormous gauntlet cuffs of the same lustrous black fur.

When Cold Weather Dries the Skin, Try Olive Oil Bath

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

[illegible] SEASON [illegible] baths is upon us and for those of [illegible] my beauty articles [illegible] year [illegible] only reminder [illegible] benefit of those new readers and old ones who may have forgotten, we will tell you again the wonders [illegible]

The [illegible] cold weather [illegible] condition, noticeable on all parts of the body. A certain amount of scaling and flaking off of dry skin takes place on the [illegible] arms the cuticle around the fingernails becomes dry, a general dry, rough texture of skin makes the [illegible] feverish and uncomfortable.

The sheer hosiery and underwear which women continue to wear the year round, regardless of the rise and fall of the thermometer, is particularly hard on the surface of the skin in winter, encouraging roughness, scaling, [illegible] texture of skin regardless of weather conditions and adding greatly to the comfort of the [illegible]

[illegible] beauty treatment [illegible] nave. Once each week, just before going to bed take a warm cleansing bath. Lie in a tub of warm water for five or ten minutes before scrubbing the body with the bath brush [illegible] with the cleansing, rinse the skin [illegible] removed. Dry the body thoroughly by vigorous rubbing with an [illegible] linen towel.

Before getting into the tub, pour about a quarter of a cupful of pure olive oil into a saucer and place this over the register or on the radiator so that it will be warm by the time you've finished bathing.

Massage the warm olive oil all over the body, giving special attention to any rough or particular dry areas. Just massage the oil lightly over the skin, using a liberal amount so that the hands slip over the skin easily as the oil is applied.

You'll find the skin literally drinking in the oil, especially if a very dry condition is present. By the time the oil has been applied to the second arm you'll find that most of that used on the first arm will have disappeared.

Slip into an old nighty or pajamas so that good garments [illegible] stained by the oil which remains on the surface of the skin and sleep tight! In the morning if the oil remains on the skin it can be sponged off with rubbing alcohol or if you have time for a shower or tub either will leave the surface of the skin free from the slightest trace of oil. Also the oil won't seep out of the pores to make the body uncomfortable later on in the day.

This treatment not only relieves roughness, chapping and scaling but refines the skin, keeping it soft and pliable during the severest weather.

If you will continue the treatment each week during the Winter you'll find that the itching condition which so often follows a hot bath disappears after the third or fourth treatment.

Your Dream House Is Waiting

By WINIFRED BLACK

WHY IT was there all the time, that little darling of a house. Not too [illegible] when you [illegible] think of [illegible] darling! On [illegible] down to the [illegible] heart in the [illegible] on cupboards.

It was sitting there in the sunshine and the wind and the [illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] just sitting there waiting.

It was built five or six years ago, the little darling of a house, and the man who built it was [illegible] of a dreamer. And he put his dream into the house. He made a window here and a door there and a dancing somewhere else and a staircase of smooth red bricks running [illegible] in a [illegible]

And [illegible] he [illegible] fashioned [illegible] when you [illegible] world of your own, and [illegible] [illegible] any town [illegible] of human beings in the way.

There's a dining room a step [illegible] and a [illegible] window [illegible] When you look [illegible] you can see [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] in them—tulips, [illegible] and hyacinths all asleep in [illegible] Some of these [illegible] wake up and come [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] school.

And [illegible] there all the time that little darling of a house [illegible] the time you were wondering where you ought to live, with this place too far from town and that place too close to the business streets and the apartment too [illegible] and that too [illegible] the time it was been there waiting for you and be one you [illegible]

And you were [illegible] afraid [illegible] couraged [illegible] to [illegible] you.

Don't be [illegible] waiting for you somewhere, the little house you dream of [illegible] and friend [illegible] and serene. And the first thing you know you [illegible] forget [illegible] ever doubted that there was [illegible] a place.

Correct Way to Eat Chicken

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Do you eat chicken with your fingers or with a knife and fork?

2. [illegible] lettuce? [illegible]

1. Chicken should be eaten with a knife and fork. It is the worst of manners to eat it in your fingers.

2.—Lettuce should be eaten with the fork [illegible] salad fork. And now, thanks to the new salad knives, we can eat hearts of lettuce or other forms of compact lettuce with both salad knife and fork.

Sugar Tongs

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to take [illegible] lumps with the fingers or should you take your spoon? The last seems rather hard to do. [illegible]

If no sugar tongs are served with the sugar bowl it is proper to take the lumps with your fingers. I agree with you that it is hard to use the spoon.

Daily True Story

To the Rescue

NO ONE [illegible] Gir[illegible] [illegible] gave her in angry [illegible]

Just [illegible] this to give you warning," he said. "You been trying to make this guy on the [illegible] Well, don't see [illegible] hear of double-crossers takin' a ride? Well—

[illegible]

"What's all this about," demanded the patrolman, his glance leaping back and forth between Rita and Gannon. "If he's annoyin' you, miss, I'll ring up and give him a ride in the wagon."

"Oh, no, no," exclaimed Rita nervously. "Let him go, officer, please."

Murphy released his captive. "She's generous to you, buddo," he said bitingly. "Well go on this time—get goin' and step on it!"

[illegible]

WANTS TO PROTECT JIM

"I—I've been trying to get my brother Jim to let him alone," Rita confessed. "He's been coaxing Jim to join him in something. I don't trust him—I think he's a racketeer, and as I'm the only mother and father Jim's got now I want to protect him, you see."

"Well, well, we will have to see about that," said Murphy thoughtfully, knitting his brows. "By the way, Miss, and what did you say your name might be?"

"Rita Jones. I live at [illegible] Jim and I do. I work in the [illegible] factory seven [illegible] near the river. Jim's got a good job too, but I'm afraid he might be tempted by a promise of easy money."

[illegible]

"I tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll have my boy Danny take a look at this case. You see, my boy Danny's a detective, and I'm thinking he'll make a good one, even if I don't ever become a Sherlock Holmes. I'll have him over to get a slant on this bird."

[illegible]

AN IMPORTANT JOB

[illegible] "Oh, by the way, dear," he exclaimed like one coming out of a dream, "I've got an important job on and I must go, much as I'd prefer to stay. I've got the inside stuff at last. I'm going right into 'Spike's' hangout tonight and haul him out by the scruff of the neck. I met a guy who's sore on him and I got the whole story. What a break for me—honey. It'll mean promotion and then—"

Dan looked longingly at [illegible] and she [illegible]

Rita plunged into her talk without waste of time. "Danny," she said over the wire, "he's gone to No. 16—you know, Mr. Murphy. I couldn't stop him. He isn't back. I'm going after him. Could you get away—in case?—"

"But that wasn't a gun," said Rita.

"Wasn't a gun?" exclaimed the Murphys, senior and junior, in amazed unison.

"No—not a gun," she answered. "Just a toy that looked like a gun—made of glass."

"Well," gasped Big Jim. "I'll be——"

"And can you beat that?" [illegible] Danny, turning to his father. "Who's [illegible] about nerve! I'm here to say, dad, [illegible] the best—man—off—the force."

"You've said it, son," declared Big Jim. "Here's to her. God bless her." And he lifted his steaming cup of coffee to his lips to drink to the heroine of the hour.

Vick Plan Helps Mothers Solve Problem of Colds

Mothers Adopt Plan By the Makers of Vicks VapoRub for Beter "Control-of-Cold in the Home

Made Possible By New Product Based On New Idea for Preventing Colds — Reduces the Family's "Colds-Tax," in Money, Loss of Time and Health

Every mother is taxed with the problem of colds—especially the frequent colds of children. And the family budget is taxed by their costs—in money, lost time and health. It is good news indeed, then, that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have perfected a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home. The Plan means fewer, less severe colds—and real reduction of the burdensome family "Colds-Tax."

Trial Offer to Vick Users

The Vick Plan is introduced along with the new Vicks Nose and Throat Drops, based on a new idea for "preventing" colds — companion product to Vicks VapoRub, the modern, external way of "treating" colds. Get a bottle of the new preparation and use it with VapoRub as directed below. Unless you are delighted with [illegible]

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds":

1.—Before a Cold Starts

When children come in sniffling and sneezing, apply a few Vicks Drops up each nostril. Use the Drops yourself at that first scratchy, sneezy irritation of the nose or upper throat — Nature's warning that you are "catching cold." If you or [illegible] catch cold easily, use the Drops after exposure to any condition you know is apt to be followed by a cold—dry, over-heated rooms—indoor crowds—sudden changes, wet or cold—dust and smoke—etc., etc.—and there is the slightest stuffiness. Used in time, many colds can be avoided.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day — any time, any place — use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. [illegible] 24 hour treatment—and without the risks of constant internal "dosing" so often [illegible] especially [illegible] delicate digestions of children.

"I can't keep Going"

Yes.. you can

Hectic days—crowded with activity . . . too much work—too much play . . . late hours—sleepless nights . . . and how they sap your nervous energy. Then your nerves rebel.

Few people escape — BUT YOU CAN. You don't have to give in to tense, tired nerves. Here's a delightful way to get relief. Drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—then drink it. In a few minutes your over-wrought nervous system is relieved. Tense nerves relax and nature soon re-coups your run-down energy. When you are irritable and all upset—when you feel you can't keep going, try Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets. They make a sparkling drink—and they're harmless to take. (457)

Get a package at any drug store and try them. They give wonderful relief for Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion, Nervous Exhaustion and similar nervous troubles. If you are not delighted with results your money will be refunded.

Stars Will Entertain Graduating Classes

Two Classes to Graduate This Week

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

The latch string is out for you and your friends tomorrow night when the Brides & Business Girls' Class of the Martha Lee Cooking school will receive their diplomas in the big classroom at 5 Winthrop sq. The Homemakers Class will graduate on Wednesday afternoon and visitors are also welcome on that day.

For both these events special entertainment has been provided through the courtesy of Mr. Ray Conner, manager of RKO Keith-Boston, and Mr. Elliston Vinson, manager of the Scollay Square Theatre.

Prominent among the entertainers will be Mr. Gerald Griffen. This famous Irish tenor—"the voice of Aaron" is a big attraction at the RKO Keith-Boston this week. Mr. Griffen is equally popular on radio programs and as a recording artist.

APOLLON REVUE

Harrison-Elmo, colored comedians, will contribute their versatile talents, and Dave Apollon is bringing down a group of boys and girls from his "Antics of 1932" at RKO Keith Boston. Mr. Apollon is called the "Russian Ambassador of Entertainment," and his revue is sure to be a treat.

The Leatra Lamont Revue, a headline attraction at the Scollay Square Theatre this week, will offer singing and dancing features. This revue is unique in that it is completely costumed in paper, by the Dennison Paper Company. Graduates will be given an opportunity to inspect these gorgeous novelties and get many hints for mid-Winter party costumes.

Don Galvin, Spanish Banjo Boy, equally adept with his native guitar, will be the romantic troubadour, blending songs, patter and music into a snappy brand of amusement.

Joe Young and Jean Jovson will furnish plenty of comedy with their [illegible] Hol [illegible]. The best taken from the balance of the Scollay bill of the current week will also be seen to insure the graduates and their friends a program of high class entertainment.

RADIO STARS TO AID

The Globe Trotter has [illegible] been down to tell us that we [illegible] also count on the appearance of several well-known radio stars. The Tenatones [illegible] Earle Widener, so popular on all the main stations of New England, will give generously of their talents, and so will Hum and Strum, popular harmony boys. Bob Emery says he will be here too, and our own Yankee Phil [illegible] people.

For further good measure, [illegible] and [illegible] members of the cooking school classes will add to the entertainment. Marjorie Marion (Davis) [illegible] age five, daughter of one of our members, Mr. Marion Davis of 135 Shore Drive, Winthrop, will give acrobatic dance and [illegible]. Marjorie Marion is a pupil of Elizabeth Rayne of Melrose and will be accompanied by Miss Linna Kei[illegible], a member and past graduate of the school. Miss Laura Spitz of Dorchester [illegible]

STARS FOR MARTHA LEE GRADUATION

Jean Jovson, of Joe Young & Co., starring at the Scollay Square Theater this week, will contribute her talents at Martha Lee's graduation parties.

Dave Appollon, "Russian Ambassador of Entertainment," will bring his "Antics of 1932" from RKO Keith-Boston Theater to add to the graduation festivities.

Gerald Griffen, famous Irish tenor, stage, radio and recording artist, appearing at RKO Keith-Boston Theatre this week, will be a headline attraction at the graduation exercises of Martha Lee's Cooking Classes, Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon.

SPECIAL CAKE GIFTS

[illegible]

Martha Lee will award diplomas to all registered members who have attended seven of the 10 sessions. And if you are not on the list of graduates this term, you'd better enroll right here and now for the January classes, which will open January 5th and 6th, continuing to March 15th and 16.

Homemakers from all over New England enjoy these cooking matinees and evening sessions, which are offered to women of Greater Boston by this newspaper without charge to stimulate an interest in better meals for less money and short cuts to easier housekeeping.

Remember, visitors are welcome at both sessions, and that means YOU, 6:30 p. m. on Tuesday, 2 p. m. Wednesday. Doors open an hour before the exercises.

Faithfully yours,

MARTHA LEE

Poinsettias You Can Eat

For a decorative Xmas cocktail or salad, you'll enjoy Poinsettia Supreme. The poinsettia is formed with strips of ruddy canned pimentos laid across a slice of pineapple. The hole in the center of the pineapple may be stuffed with cream cheese and nuts with parsley sprinkled on top to represent the center of the flower.

The Terriers will go back into action again on Friday night when they tackle the Dupins [illegible] sextet at the Boston Arena.

On Saturday night Harvard and McGill will stage the first international college game of the season. McGill boasts of one of the strongest teams in the Canadian college ranks and the Crimson is taking on a heavy assignment in the Montreal collegians.

In the past, Harvard-McGill games were one of the season's leading college attractions. McGill did not take kindly to the defeat suffered at the hands of the Crimson a year ago in the Montreal Forum and will make the fur fly from the start of Saturday night's battle.

GREENLEAF IN FOR HARD WEEK

Last Chance Today to Win Fight Tickets

You still have a chance to win a pair of the 48 tickets the Boston Evening American is awarding for the big Schaaf-Bergomas bout in the Arena on Wednesday evening. Get your 200-word answer in before midnight, tonight, when the contest closes. Who is Max Schmeling's logical opponent? In a six-man elimination, how would you match Schaaf, Dempsey, Sharkey, Carnera, Loughran and Walker? Prize winners will be announced on Wednesday, and some of the best answers sent in by the prize winners will be printed during the week.

Eagle Tackle in Fair Condition

Alphonse "Ike" Ezmunt of Salem, Boston College tackle who was operated on Saturday for appendicitis, was reported as "resting comfortably" at the Cardinal O'Connell House early this morning. The Eagle gridster is in fairly good condition.

Evidently Art Duncan is some favorite in Toronto, for as soon as it leaked out that he was to be replaced by Dick Irwin the press and the fans came to his aid, claiming that it was interference on the part of Connie Smythe and not inferior coaching, that caused the Maple Leafs to get off to such a poor start.

Schaaf Unmarked in Bout With Simms

[illegible] his winning [illegible] Simms in Cleveland [illegible] asked Johnny [illegible] sent out [illegible] to the effect Schaaf [illegible] one of his [illegible] before he stopped Simms in [illegible]

"Schaaf started the claret flowing from Simms' face early in the bout," said Buckley. "Some of the blood got on Ernie's face, and some of the people at the ringside thought Schaaf was also cut. This was not the case. I have just had some photographs taken which prove that Schaaf is unmarked.

"Simms was almost knocked out in the first round. Simms is a terrific right hand puncher himself, but he couldn't stand up under Schaaf's attack.

"Mickey Walker made the trip to Cleveland to see Schaaf in action. Now Walker has found out how Schaaf can punch I don't think he will agree to meet Ernie in New York Garden."

Schaaf has pushed to the front [illegible] Jack Sharkey [illegible] purchased [illegible] from Paul Schoessburg [illegible] a year ago [illegible] money out [illegible] a handsome profit [illegible]

[illegible] back to his [illegible] opening [illegible] As an amateur there wasn't [illegible] about Schaaf. He [illegible] savage punches from the opening [illegible] and usually ended [illegible] knocking out his opponent.

Schaaf [illegible] over [illegible] Campolo, Tom Maloney, Max Baer, Dick Daniels and Jack Delva.

Schaaf, Loughran Standing Even

[illegible] under the [illegible] management [illegible] beaten Tommy Loughran. He also has been outscored by Loughran on [illegible] occasions.

Schaaf [illegible] met Loughran in a [illegible] bout in New York [illegible] the latter won [illegible] have any [illegible] Tommy figures he [illegible] outscore Schaaf in a 10 [illegible] so confident of [illegible] a 15-round contest.

[illegible] Schaaf who poses for the [illegible] trophy. [illegible] the trophy that carries the name of all of the old champions. The trophy committee refused to permit Max Schmeling's name to be placed on the trophy when he won on a foul from Jack Sharkey. It didn't believe Schmeling proved himself a worthy champion.

I do not believe there is a heavyweight in the world who can take a punch better than Schaaf. He has never been knocked off his feet. In some of his matches, he has been hit some terrific blows flush on the jaw, but has always come back fighting.

As Ernie can also punch, is six feet one inch tall and weighs 210 pounds, he stands forth as the most promising young heavyweight in the world.

I believe Schaaf would lick Loughran or Walker over the 15-round route.

Before Schaaf can get either of these matches, he must first win [illegible] Bergomas [illegible] at the Arena on Wednesday night. Bergomas is six feet four [illegible] and weighs [illegible] pounds [illegible] a bout since he came to America.

[illegible] country, Bergomas has [illegible] O'Kelley, fought a draw with O'Kelley, stopped Jack Shaw, beaten John Casanova and fought draw with Tom Heeney and Charley Retzlaff.

In Europe, Bergomas won 24 out [illegible]

Jack McCarthy to Be Outstanding Heavy

I found Jack McCarthy of Boston [illegible] with Schaaf [illegible] three or four years. I look for McCarthy [illegible] with the best of [illegible] heavyweights. He only weighs 1[illegible] pounds [illegible] frame and is certain to put on additional weight.

McCarthy will also appear on Wednesday night's Argonne card. He will oppose Tiny DeBolt of Cleveland. The latter has met Frankie Simms, Gene Stanton, Billy Jones and other big fellows.

We have considered the ring possibilities of Dempsey, Carnera, Sharkey and Schaaf.

DAVIS CUP STAR SAYS CAPTAIN ABUSED HIM

'CALLED ME FOOL,' SAYS WOOD

New York, Dec. 14 (AP). Sidney B. Wood, [illegible] 19-year-old member of the last United States Davis Cup squad and Wimbledon champion, today publicly accused Samuel Hardy, Davis Cup captain, of berating him instead of encouraging him at a critical point of one of his matches in the Interzone final at Paris.

Wood accused Hardy of making [illegible] attack on him and said:

"Had you been in the locker room of the Stade Roland Garros in Paris during the rest period of my match against Austin (Austin two sets, I one) and overheard my captain (Hardy) telling me, with a lack of control surely to be regretted in one supposed to lead and encourage his players, that I was no good, that I looked like a fool on the court and that I had no chance to win—had you heard all this, you would understand why I can employ invective toward my former captain."

Hardy in his article suggested that Wood not be considered [illegible] other Davis Cup squad [illegible] he had reached the finals of a national championship or some similar event. Wood points out that he won the Wimbledon title.

"I don't really know," he continued, "whether or not Wimbledon is considered an event similar to a national championship, but my captain evidently regards it as otherwise."

Wood admits he was the "head goat" in this year's Davis Cup play where England eliminated the United States in the interzone with Sidney losing both his matches, and said that at first he read scathing reports of his play "almost sympathetically. But when people start to prophesying his career as an international player was already (at 19) past," Wood said he must disagree.

SMITH, LEDUC DRAW FINES

Montreal, Dec. 14 (AP). Fines of $25 each were imposed on Hooley Smith of the Montreal Maroons and Albert Leduc of the Canadiens for their first fight at the Montreal Canadiens National Hockey League game here last Saturday night.

Frank Calder, league president, in announcing the fines, said both players had received warnings of suspension and further fines if the incident is repeated.

Smith swung his stick at Pete Lepine, Canadiens center star, and Leduc attacked Smith. Smith drew a major penalty for [illegible] his stick to hit Lepine and Leduc got a major for taking the law into his own hands. After the game was over Smith and Leduc staged a fist fight at center ice as they were on their way to their dressing rooms.

Percy Foss First in Concord Shoot

Percy B. Foss won the open 25 bird skeet shoot of the Musketaquid Sportsman's Club at West Concord, with a tally of 25.

Lloyd Rennie was second, and Augustine W. Macone and Salvatore A. Macone, brothers, were tied for third with 23.

Percy B. Foss, 25; Lloyd Rennie, 24; Augustine W. Macone, 23; Salvatore A. Macone, 23; J. A. Macone, 22; Harry F. Tuttle, 22; Isaac Langille, 20; Dr. Wendell F. Davis, 20; R. Cunningham, 18; Miss Mary Abbott, 18; L. Davis, 14; M. Peterson, 9; W. Sawyer, 9; Dr. Cohen, 8.

A savage right hand [illegible] jaw sent Loughran [illegible]. When he got up he was [illegible] feet.

Just as Sharkey was [illegible] land another right, Dan [illegible] Magnolia went to the [illegible] of beaten boxer.

"I want some place to sit down at," Loughran mumbled to Magnolia.

Tommy later told me he was on his way to his dressing room before his head cleared.

"I was on my way to the championship when I met Sharkey," said Tommy. "I was like the kid who climbed to the top of a fence only to get hit on the head by a bat when he was in a position to look at the ball game. Sharkey hit me a terrific belt."

Loughran Willing to Meet Sharkey

Since being knocked out by Sharkey, Loughran in his engagements has [illegible] and has won them all. [illegible] feels he is entitled to another chance to show [illegible] Sharkey in an [illegible] match if necessary.

As for Mickey Walker, he [illegible] his title as world's middleweight champion so that he can meet Sharkey in New York last summer. Though Sharkey scored [illegible] Walker but the [illegible] called a draw.

Walker has remained inactive since the Sharkey bout. [illegible] for a bout with Schmeling.

Sharkey took much of the fire out of the Walker bout when he beat Carnera. The Schmeling-Walker bout is only a secondary contest and will be promoted in Madison Square Garden in New York in February, if permitted by boxing fathers.

There was originally talk of dropping the match in at Los Angeles but it is felt it couldn't make money on the Coast. If it isn't held in New York, Miami, Fla., [illegible] be the scene of the contest.

Schmeling May Try to Dodge Sharkey

Schmeling will lick Walker and then try to sidestep Sharkey by taking on Dempsey if possible.

The public, however, is the only one entitled to name Schmeling's opponent for a title match.

Who do you consider the leading contender?

What series of matches would you arrange to name the challenger?

Dempsey, Carnera, Sharkey, Schaaf, Walker and Loughran are the contenders.

Forty-eight tickets for the Schaaf-Bergomas bout at the Arena on Wednesday night will be given as prizes for the best answers. Eight tickets will go to the followers of each of the contenders.

Write out your selection and plan of bouts, keep your letter inside of 200 words, write on only one side of the paper and mail to Schmeling Contest Editor, Sporting Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

The polls close at midnight.

Hockey Attendance Record Is Broken

New York, Dec. 14 (INS)—A seasonal record for hockey attendance was recorded today, 18,000 fans having attended the thrilling fight in the Garden last night when the New York Rangers team defeated the New York Americans, 2 to 1.

Meehan left New York this afternoon to address a high school banquet in Rome, N. Y., tonight.

President of N. Y. U. Alumni Shocked by Meehan Decision

New York, Dec. 14 (AP). The following statement regarding Chick Meehan's decision not to [illegible] New York University as head football coach next fall was issued today by Marion D. Sa[illegible]son, president of the University Alumni Federation:

The news of Mr. Meehan's resignation comes as a shock to the entire alumni body. Since 1925, when he became head coach of football, New York University has made remarkable strides in building up under his direction a football team of national prominence. His personal popularity with the alumni increased as the years went along and his loyalty to the university stands equal to that of the most enthusiastic alumnus. We are sorry to see him go.

He may be one of the poorest scorers among the forwards in the National League but Walter Percy "Perk" Galbraith is nevertheless one of Art Ross' most valuable men. When a Bruin is put in the pen "Perk" immediately rushes on for he's one of the best defensive players in the league and covers his man like Carnera's overcoat covers a singer midget.

He is playing his sixth season with the Bruins, having joined the Hub outfit in 1926. From the start he has been a regular left wing in addition to line relief worker.

He was born in Toronto in 1899 and started playing hockey at the age of 17.

That many think the selling on Saturday was of climactic proportions. Together with the resistance shown by many favored issues this leads them to look for a rally from approximately the low levels of Saturday. The bond department which seems to hold the key to stock prices has apparently been experiencing a selling climax also and traders should watch carefully to see if the promise of Saturday is fulfilled.

There are indications that the market is working toward a selling climax. The last two days have witnessed increasing volume on the downside. Another factor strengthening the belief that a turn, even if only temporary, is near is that signs of support are becoming evident. The safest policy, however, is still to wait for the climax.

ALLIES SEEN IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

ew York, Dec. 14—Two good ies were seen in Wall Street lings today, one in the first and ther in the last hour. Sandhed in between was new sell-.

tocks firmed slowly in the last ir, reducing losses of 1 to 4 nts suffered during a period of ly afternoon weakness. Rails e steadier than industrials or ities.

, S. Steel, after sagging for 2 nts, cut its decline about in f. American Telephone reacted 120 before meeting support.

0,000-SHARE DAY

eneral Motors, Du Pont, Amern Can, New York Central, Un- Pacific and Case closed firm. ransfers approximated 2,900,000 ares.

round midday some fresh liquition, or bear selling, put in its pearance, moving U. S. Steel and ier important shares down to ke the new lows which have ely been appearing day after y.

he railroad stocks benefited m reports that the railroad extives were confident that their ntroversy with union leaders uld be adjusted at a reasonably rly date. Nevertheless, the ight of selling in other sections the list caused loss of early railad gains. In addition, Baltimore Ohio, Southern Pacific and nnsylvania declined around 2 ints, net.

eading Wall Street executives ewed the decision of the Japese government to suspend paynts in gold as a regrettable, but "no means a necessarily harml expedient. American commerce, was reasoned, should be little afcted.

Full influence of the decision is ipossible to measure at this time, ey agreed, but aside from temrary unsettlement which a raply changing price for the yen ight cause in the world markets r silk and cotton, no change of ajor importance was anticipated.

UST PAY IN DOLLARS

Holders of $300,000,000 of Japese bonds in this market will not iffer, it was said, as payments on incipal and interest are to be ade in dollars and not in yen.

The bulk of overseas news reived today was more reassuring an otherwise. Particularly gratiing to the Wall St. banking comunity was the statement of the ritish chancellor of the exchequer hat the government was confident f its ability to balance the budget.

In some quarters, a degree of oncern was voiced over reports hat Canada planned to take oficial action at an early date, removing the Dominion from the old standard. Technically, it was ointed out, Canada has been off he gold basis for several weeks.

After giving promise of a rally luring the first hour or so, the urb softened today when selling was resumed throughout the list. On the decline, Electric Bond & Share broke below 10. American Superpower was active and heavy. Gulf Oil continued the decline set in motion by the dividend omission last Saturday.

Aluminum of America, whose high for the year is 224, sold under 80. Singer Manufacturing dropped a dozen points on a few sales, and there was a shrinkage of several points each for A. O. Smith and Great Atlantic & Pacific. Woolworth Ltd. was again one of the few firm spots.

Although some bonds continued their descent to new low records today, the market as a whole hardened appreciably. In the rails, which recently have been under heavy pressure, there were occasional recoveries. Weakness of Japanese bonds was the feature of the foreign list.

NEW LOWS SET IN BOSTON

New lows were set in today's late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange, after an early rally, which followed opening losses, sent stocks from 1 to 2 points higher. Reaction set in shortly after the first period and all sections of the list were affected.

Atchison, American Telephone, Bigelow Sanford, Edison Electric Pennsylvania and Crown Cork International all were at new 1931 minimums. Fresh lows were also shown for Pond Creek Pocahontas, Stone & Webster, Swift International, United Founders, United Fruit, United Shoe and Warren Bros.

Boston Elevated dropped nearly 2 points and First National Stores was down over 2. New England Telephone lowered 2 points and Gillette was off 1. Boston Personal Property dipped 1.

Hornblower & Weeks issued the following statement:

"Referring to consolidation rumors concerning us, we never have discussed or considered, are not now discussing or considering and have no intention hereafter to discuss or consider any consolidation or merger with any other house."

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, Dec. 14—Grains closed higher here today. Wheat finished up ⅛-⅜ cts., corn unchanged to ⅛ higher, oats ⅛-⅜ off to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

"THIS IS A GREAT GAG, SAM—IF YOU COULD ONLY DIG UP A COUPLE OF MORE 'GRAND CHILDREN'—WE'D SOON BE AS RICH AS OLD KING CREOSOTE"
LISTEN, PETE—IF YOUR BRAINS WERE AS BIG AS YOUR MOUTH—— YOU'D BE THE SMARTEST GUY IN THE WORLD!!
JUST KEEP YOUR TRAP SHUT! LET ME RUN THINGS—I USED MY NOODLE—DUG UP A GOOD RACKET—NOW LET ME RUN IT! THE KID'S A MEAL TICKET AS LONG AS YOU ONLY OPEN YOUR JAWS TO EAT THE FOOD SHE DIGS UP FER US!!
DID YOU HEAR WHAT MY GRANDFATHER WAS SAYING, ZERO? THE WAY HE WAS TALKING SOUNDED KINDA FUNNY TO ME! —LOOKS LIKE IF THEY WAS UP TO SOME SORT OF A FAKE!

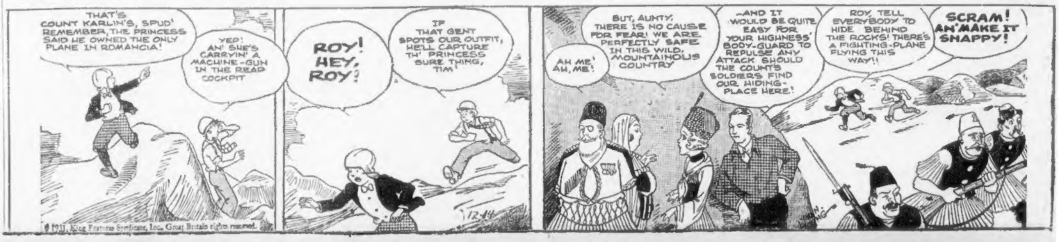
TIM TYLER'S FLYING LUCK

The Approaching Hawk

By Lym Young



THAT'S COUNT KARLIN'S, SPUD! REMEMBER, THE PRINCESS SAID HE OWNED THE ONLY PLANE IN ROMANCIA!
YEP! AN' SHE'S CARRYIN' A MACHINE-GUN IN THE REAR COCKPIT
ROY! HEY, ROY!
IF THAT GENT SPOTS OUR OUTFIT, HE'LL CAPTURE TH' PRINCESS SURE THING, TIM!
12-14
AH ME! AH, ME!
BUT, AUNTY, THERE IS NO CAUSE FOR FEAR! WE ARE PERFECTLY SAFE IN THIS WILD, MOUNTAINOUS COUNTRY —AND IT WOULD BE QUITE EASY FOR YOUR HIGHNESS' BODY-GUARD TO REPULSE ANY ATTACK SHOULD THE COUNT'S SOLDIERS FIND OUR HIDING-PLACE HERE!
ROY, TELL EVERYBODY TO HIDE BEHIND THE ROCKS! THERE'S A FIGHTING-PLANE FLYING THIS WAY!!
SCRAM! AN' MAKE IT SNAPPY!

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

(Copyright, 1931, for the Boston Evening American.)

English people are very charming and resent the traditional caricature of the Englishman as depicted on the American stage.

Be that as it may, the following personal is clipped from the London Morning Post—

EX-OFFICER, 45, contemplating MOTOR TRIP, own car, would welcome suggestions. Box 959, 12-14, Mayfair-place, W. 1.

WITH FRISBY IN MANCHURIA

FAR OFF CHINA—Hello, Business Men of America! I just thought you would like to see a picture of my office out here. It has linoleum floors covered with bear and oriental rugs. The walls are hung with rare old art calendars, while the waste basket is threaded with mauve satin ribbons. If any of this gives you an idea for your own offices, feel perfectly free to steal my idea and go ahead. I haven't quite decided what business I may engage in out here, but the very attractive young lady above said she was an excellent stenographer, and on the strength of her statement I immediately rented this office, where, I am sure, we will be very happy, working as it were, hand in hand.

Points of the President's Message—Number 3

The President's annual message to Congress states that our Army has been "MAINTAINED IN A HIGH STATE OF EFFICIENCY."

This astounding statement is flatly contradicted by the following disclosure in the annual report of General MacArthur, as CHIEF OF STAFF:

> "The dispersion of the regular Army in small detachments throughout continental United States makes it impracticable to have immediately available an adequate, balanced, and efficient force of regular troops to meet the first phases of emergency.
> "The few infantry troops in the United States available for immediate field service are distributed among twenty-four regiments located at forty-five different posts with a battalion or less at thirty-four.
> "Artillery troops are in a similar situation. They are distributed among seven regiments and seven separate battalions located at nineteen different posts with a battalion or less at sixteen.
> "Under such conditions combined tactical training in the regular Army alone is rendered most difficult."

As a result of the military inefficiency so vividly portrayed by the Chief of Staff we have today smaller combat forces available for defense than are permitted to Germany, defeated in the Great War, and trampled to extinction under the iron heel of dominant and domineering France.

Even what we have are so scattered and so involved in the "housekeeping" of so many small garrisons that efficient training for these combat forces is out of the question.

Under such conditions companies of sixteen to twenty-four soldiers turn out for combat instruction and battalions can seldom get together more than 150 men, or less than a war-strength company.

In other words, we have sacrificed that emergency force which General Pershing warns us is so ESSENTIAL TO OUR DEFENSE IN WAR.

Furthermore, we have done nothing toward mechanizing and motorizing what is left of our little army — NOTHING TOWA MODERNIZING ITS ARMS AND EQUIPMENT.

ndous advances along all these lines have been made Great War, but our little Army remains armed and ist about as it was in that conflict.

Yet arms and equipment are just as vital to the effectiveness of a combat force as its organization, distribution and unit strength.

In view of the fact that the truth about the present plight of our military establishment has LONG BEEN A MATTER OF OFFICIAL RECORD IN THE WAR DEPARTMENT, it is hard to understand how Mr. Hoover could assure the Congress that he is maintaining our Army in "a high state of efficiency."

No administration strengthens itself in the confidence of Congress or the country by falling a victim to wrong information.

For as our own Ralph Waldo Emerson once said:

> "The people know that they need in their representative much more than talent—namely, THE POWER TO MAKE HIS TALENT TRUSTED."

Millions for Liquidating Our "Frozen" Banks

The innocent depositors of the closed banks in Greater Boston are entitled to every consideration.

They should be paid back their money as promptly as is humanly possible.

They should not be made the victims of any RACKET in the process of liquidation.

We have had experience in these matters, not so far-distant that the public can be assumed to have forgotten them.

At the time of Ponzi, five banks of substantial size were taken over by the Bank Commissioner.

The records of four of them—the Hanover, Tremont, Prudential and Cosmopolitan—show that the EXPENSES OF LIQUIDATION WERE IN EXCESS OF $1,260,000.

These liquidating agents are political appointees of the Governor and Bank Commissioner, even if they are formally ratified by the courts.

And the temptation and the pressure are strong upon them to employ a lot of political old hacks and to drag out the process of liquidation in order that their salaries, fees and commissions will continue over a long period.

They are likely to be harassed by friends and near-friends "on the inside" looking for a chance to "buy in on" the securities and other properties of the banks that have to be sold at bargain prices on a forced market.

The liquidating "expenses" of the banks above mentioned ranged FROM 3.67 TO 10 PER CENT of the cash collected by them from the debtors of the banks.

In other words, if these expenses were paid to the depositors, whose money was involved, they would have amounted to a tidy interest on their sequestered deposits.

SOME OF THESE LIQUIDATIONS WERE ALLOWED TO DRAG ON FOR TWO YEARS.

If Governor Ely has been unaware of any of these facts, he can now have no excuse for not knowing them.

The public look to him to compel a speedy and honest liquidation. Affairs of most of the banks now in the hands of the State are being handled by men of unimpeachable character. They are doing the best they can, under the hampering rules of the banking department, to bring such relief as is possible to the depositors as quickly as possible, and with as little cost as possible.

Governor Ely and his subordinates must see that every liquidating appointee and agent performs likewise.

Decent, thrifty Massachusetts citizens must not be penalized for the mistakes or wrong-doings of others over whom they had no control.

They had a right to expect that the State of Massachusetts was safeguarding their interests.

And the State should not be guilty of any more delinquencies.

Best Wishes, Judge!

To Judge Michael J. Murray, who has completed a quarter of a century of service as Justice of the Boston Municipal Court:

Congratulations and good wishes.

The public as a whole has been deprived of Judge Murray's great oratorical skill these last few years, but those who have appeared before him have good reason to know that his ability to compose the troubles among men without rancor but kindness still exists.

Puppy Love

QUEER CREATURES—parents. Take the Pattersons, for instance, and their two children.

Ed and Edith are simply wrapped up in those youngsters. Nothing's too good for them. Always fussing over their diet, their clothes, their schooling, their sports, their vacations.

And the kids are a great success. Alice May is 17 now—a fine, big girl—going to be a beauty some day. And Bill's 15—but looks three years older. You can't blame Ed and Edith for being mighty proud of the job they've done—

But here's the queer angle.

Alice May, as I've said, is 17. Typical athletic American girl. Crazy about tennis, swimming, riding, snow sports. But, of course, that isn't all. If you know anything about 17 year old femmes, you'll realize that young Alice May is all a seethe with certain speculations that have nothing to do with tennis or football. In short, she's taking a very lively, and most natural interest in The Other Sex.

Likewise young Bill. Bill's in the throes of his first Grand Pash. She's a blonde hasher down in the Bee Hive and easily four years his senior. But age and social distinctions mean nothing to Bill, who has suddenly broken out in a violent rash of new neckties, socks, hair lotions and wart cures.

All of which, as we said before, is perfectly natural . . . as inevitable as teething and colic. And you'd expect wise, careful Dad and Mom Patterson to realize the fact. But you'd expect wrong! For though they've met every other parental emergency with superb good humor and good sense, they're muffing this particular ball all over the lot.

Does not Mom Edith, remembering her own 17-year-old dreams, invite the Boys in, get a new bunch of dance records and set the stage for Romance. Yes, she does NOT. Instead—

"Alice May is such a comfort," she boasts to her friends, in Alice May's presence. "Just the sort of nice, wholesome little girl I hoped she'd be. Boy crazy? My dear! Why the child never gives a thought to boys!"

And Alice May, listening, feels hot and angry and ashamed. For every tingle and throb of her awakening young body is thinking of nothing but Boys! And why should it be otherwise? Yet—maybe if she were really a nice girl, like Mother thinks she is, she wouldn't feel that way—Maybe it's just because she's horrid and bad—

Sick at the thought of her own horridness, Little Alice May sidles away from Mother's trusting eyes—carrying her guilty secret with her . . . wondering how she's going to meet Boys without Mother knowing!

Upstairs, standing before his mirror, struggling with his new "lay-back," young Bill is having his bad quarter of an hour. Mother and Dad do not ignore nor deny Bill's new heart interest. Instead, they have decided to Laugh It Off. So, from morning till night, Bill endures an unmerciful razzing. Bill grins miserably in answer. Sneaks off, as soon as they'll let him. Sits in his room glowering, brooding—sex, that should be to him a radiant revelation, darkening into a murky secret.

Queer creatures—parents! Most of them would, without an instant's hesitation, lay down their lives for their youngsters. For years they toil and sacrifice without stint to guard their children physically. YET WHEN THOSE CHILDREN APPROACH THEIR FIRST GREAT SPIRITUAL EXPERIENCE, WHAT DO THEY DO? Chat it off! Laugh it away! Turn the thing that should be natural and sweet and sacred into forbidden fruit. Create confusions, erect barriers, which may take years to destroy . . . which often mar and scar a sensitive spirit's whole life. Then say it doesn't matter because "it's only puppy love"!

Queer people—parents!

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—Diary of a modern Pepys: Came a highly readable autographed book by Bob Davis called "Hither and Yon," and off to bid farewell to Billy De Beck and wife against journeying abroad and also saw Josephine Gwynne, Erskine's wife, a-visiting from Paris, as fair a lady as I know.

Then here and there about town, running into John Farrar and Clarence Budington Kelland. Also Karl Hoblitzelle and his wife, Esther Walker, whose singing records were such a delight a few years back. So home and in great hunger somehow for tapioca pudding.

At nightfall to see a light comedy and sat across the aisle from Mayor Walker, more late than usual, and his frequent companion and diminutive, A. C. Blumenthal. Afterward driving Norma Terris and Dr. Wagner to the Ambassador. Early to bed.

One of the new assistants to Tin Pan Alley is Father Connor, an assistant priest in a New Jersey parish. In leisure moments, Father Connor, under the pseudonym of Pierre Norman, has turned out some of the whistlingest tunes of the day along with a batch of them songs for talkies. Best known are: "Moonlight Saving Time," "I Took My Sugar to Tea," "You Brought a New Kind of Love," and "I Got IT But It Doesn't Mean a Thing."

Speaking of talkies, few know that Windsor McCay, celebrated cartoonist, was first to introduce the animated cartoon. His effort depicted a swollen and sullen dinosaur swallowing civilization. In formative days, animating the cartoon was a tedious process in contrast with the high speed formula now in vogue. McCay is reputed to have sold rights to the idea for $500.

The mother of the enormously talented Helen Menken is deaf and mute. Many believe that the amazingly expressive hands of the actress were developed through years of talking with her mother, a constant companion, in sign language. Mrs. Menken is a frequent associate of the blind and deaf marvel, Helen Keller, and they often attend the theater together. Miss Keller, I am told, upon meeting a stranger touches his shoulder. Years after she will know him by that touch.

And Willard Mack avers the most stinging slap ever received for a play read: "Another one of those Mack things was offered last night at the Booth. And the audience went home in a taxi."

Sarcasm, however, is not confined to the arts. It often bludgeons in out-of-the-way places. Regina Wallace once stopped at a lunch wagon on the outskirts of New York when returning from a motor tour. She selected a dish of rice pudding for dessert. After a while, she remarked to the beetle-browed counterman: "There doesn't seem to be any raisins in this!" He flipped: "Don't give up, lady. Keep digging. You may snaffle an accordion."

Personal nomination for the most artistically draped muffler next to Noel Coward's—that of Dudley Field Malone.

Thingumbubs: Groucho Marx wears business suits to parties . . . Billy Seaman, once a Broadway playboy, now phones his wife, Phillis Haver, every hour . . . Rube Goldberg has replicas of his grotesque cartoon statues in bronze in his West 75th street home . . . Edgar Selwyn memorizes every line of a play before directing it . . . Albert Payson Terhune once lived with a tribe of Bedouins . . . Leonard Bergman owns more than 500 scarf pins . . . Vincent Lopez likes to attend seances . . . Douglas Fairbanks still talks baby talk to Mary.

* * *

From a newspaper magazine: "McIntyre has been writing about New York for 18 years. He has a desk completely of glass."

With a silk hat, I'd almost be an American Magazine boy.

Just Folks

What Makes the Game

"I fumbled," said the sad-eyed lad,
"And lost the golden chance I had!"
"That's quite all right," his coach replied,
"I understand how hard you tried.
Forget it now! Go back and fight
With all your strength and all your might.

"Take hold of this consoling thought:
If every ball that's thrown were caught;
If no one faltered; no one fell;
If every play we tried went well;
If gain with every venture came,
There would be nothing to the game.

"What makes the game? Not perfect play,
But golden chances thrown away!
The fumbled ball; the slight mistake
Which men however skillful make,
The faulty judgment and the will
To wait and work for victory still.

"And so with life! If all were plain;
If men perfection could attain,
If neither doubt nor loss nor fear
Should ever test our courage here;
If we knew all, and all could see,
Then deadly dull this life would be."

Lady Bountiful in Run-Down Heels

By Claude G. Bowers

The London News-Chronicle, commenting on the revelations on American conditions in the President's message, concludes that "the United States is a very sick country," and the London Morning Telegraph says:

> "President Hoover unfolded a melancholy story, showing that the Federal Treasury is in a far worse position than the British Exchequer."

To Americans, who have been fed by the Administration on Pollyanna reassurances, this will be startling. We are constantly hearing from Administration quarters that the United States is most fortunate in not being in such a bad condition as the countries of Europe. We have pointed out the insincerity of this statement many times. It is sheer nonsense, it is pure fabrication, to imply that France is in as bad a condition as the United States. In comparison, France is rolling in prosperity, without our deficit, without our necessity enormously to increase taxes, and with but 300,000 jobless men to our 6,500,000.

In England, as the London paper says, the Exchequer is not confronted, even proportionately, with anything like the deficit that confronts us now; and proportionately she has no more unemployed than we have.

We are now forced to submit to a most drastic increase in taxation which is not likely to hasten the return of normal conditions.

Under these circumstances, what is to be said of a Government that will agree to transfer the debts of England, France and the other debtor nations from the shoulders of their taxpayers to the backs of our own?

Lady Bountiful in Rags is up against the bread and butter proposition now.

Unable to Make Both Ends Meet

The press comments in Berlin reveal the fact that Germany has had no idea of the seriousness of the crisis here. "Germania" finds evidence in the President's confession of "a worse depression in the United States than had been generally apparent." To the nations prone to look upon us as the world's Santa Claus it must be disturbing to learn that we ourselves are unable at present to make both ends meet.

It is going to take some time to balance our own budget; and it will be longer before we again smugly and sternly call on Europe to balance hers. Certainly we are in no condition to play the benefactor of mankind by taking over the debts of other nations and paying them out of the pockets of our own people.

There is not a scintilla of doubt that the Administration, in its policies and through its conversations with the debtor nations, is moving toward further reductions or, what it amounts to in the end, the transfer of the debts of other nations to the taxpayers of this country. This plan, ready or in the making, is to be imposed upon us because our bankers have made extravagant private loans in Europe which cannot be readily liquidated if the people in the nations where the loans were placed are to be taxed to repay what they borrowed from the American Government. The "butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker" are to be taxed to pay the debts of foreign governments so that the private loans may be paid at good interest to the American banker.

And that justifies the demand of Senator Johnson.

> "We want to know who floated these loans, under what authority, in what quantities and how much compensation was received. We want to ascertain why the American people should be compelled as a whole to stabilize securities held by private bankers and enable these banks to collect the full amount of interest upon these securities they hold, while the Government collects nothing upon the securities it holds for all the people."

"Simply Stopped Paying Off the Debt"

The Mellon or Administration tax plan will not be adopted in its entirety. It satisfies no one. It is impossible for any tax plan to satisfy everyone. The retroactive feature of the proposed plan, the lowering of the income tax exemptions to reach almost two million people of small incomes, are under attack.

The Democratic leaders in the House and Senate will formulate their substitute proposal only after a thorough study of the situation, and Congress and the people will have an opportunity to pass upon the two proposals. From Democratic sources we hear the same suggestion that comes from Dr. Seligman, the political economist of Columbia, when he says:

> "It is seriously open to question whether it is proper to continue the policy of retiring about $500,000,000 of bonds annually, as the United States is doing at present."

Under the sinking fund law this is required; but for a decade the Administration has prided itself on paying off the debt faster than required by the law. And Dr. Seligman submits:

> "Is is wise to observe the letter of the law at a time when such excessive burdens are to be imposed on the community?"

The nation was confronted by precisely the same problem at the time of the panic of 1873; and then, acting on the spirit rather than the letter of the law, the Government "simply stopped paying off the debt" during the lean years. We shall hear something of this in Congress, we have no doubt.

One thing we know, if money is necessary from the National Treasury to meet the national problem of human misery under this Administration it is going to be furnished; for any other course would make this country a disgrace to the family of nations.

And more; it is an exceedingly poor time for the Administration forces to jeer at hungry women and children.

Walker and Prohibition

Mr. Joseph Walker comes out of his political retirement long enough to say that "Prohibition can and must be repealed for the good of the people and the Nation."

> "I see nothing harmful," he says, "in having a glass of beer fresh on draught with a sandwich. Our opponents say it is harmful. Absurd.
> "Instead of the government receiving revenue from the lawful sale of liquors, the revenue is going into the underworld to finance those who break all laws.
> "The law must be submitted to the people. We must not let any minority group rule the country."

Mr. Joseph Walker is a temperate and a temperance man.

He is a man of wealth, but not one of those willing to deny the working people a glass of palatable beer while they sit back and contentedly consume the high-priced liquors they can afford to buy.

Mr. Walker was one of the outstanding progressive Republicans of our time. It is a pleasure to see that the march of the years has strengthened, not weakened, his democratic regard for democratic government—the right of the majority.
